Air products deal will net village $300k

Water deal officially approved by village board

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA — Village trustees have formally adopted and signed an escrow and reimbursement agreement with Air Products, a green hydrogen facility being built on Pontoon Bridge Road in the town of Massena.

The action came during a special meeting held Oct. 30.

The village previously agreed to a deal with Air Products to supply $300,000 worth of water to the facility each year, which utilizes hydrolysis to extract hydrogen from water.

Village officials previously commented that there was an excess capacity in the raw water supply of the village which could be utilized by Air Products to support their facility.

As part of the agreement with Air Products, feasibility studies and improvements will have to be made to the water infrastructure of the village to ensure a supply can reach Air Products.

Department of Public Works Superintendent Marty Miller previously commented that the pumps at the water treatment facility, along with a redundant water line to the north end of the village and into the town would be required.

Mayor Greg Paquin said he and village officials would discuss the matter with Air Products in hopes of striking a deal that would see the hydrogen producer help pay for the upgrades and new line.

The village will also contract with Labella Associates to perform the early phase engineering work of the project, along with feasibility studies.

Adam Smith trial continues in Canton

Autopsies and murder weapons discussed at trial

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

State Police Investigators have testified that they believe a knife recovered from Adam Smith's impounded truck is the weapon used to murder Ronald "Huck" Durham on Feb. 11, 2023.

Smith stands accused of murdering Durham and William Freeman on March 2, 2023 in the town of Rossie.

Murder weapon match?

During his cross examination by defense attorney Brian Barrett, Investigator Daniel Haley was asked about the knife that police found in a garbage bag found in the back of Smith's impounded 2016 Ford F-150 that was secured in Cortland.

Barrett asked for a timeline of the discovery of evidence, which Haley said occurred on March 9, nearly four weeks after Durham's murder on Feb. 11.

Barrett asked Haley if he had spoken to Patrolman Austin Fisk of the Cortland City Police Department, to which Haley replied he had not due to Fisk being on vacation at the time he was informed of Smith's truck being in Cortland City Police impound.

Barrett called into question the duration of time between the murder and discovery of the knife, suggesting it could be difficult to prove the knife was used.

But during redirect by District Attorney Gary Pasqua, Haley said Dr. Scott Lapoint, who conducted the autopsy on Durham on Feb. 12, had commented that one injury sustained to Durham's chin was consistent with a partially serrated blade.

Haley said the blade of the Gerber knife recovered from Smith's truck was a partially serrated blade.

Patricia Woods, manager of the Gouverneur ACE Hardware, confirmed that Smith purchased a 10" Gerber fixed blade knife at the store just weeks prior to Durham's murder as well.

Searching Wing's residence

Shortly after the death of Ronald Durham on Feb. 11, police investigated Freddie Wing's involvement in the homicide.

Haley said he was told on Feb. 12 that Wing had confessed to the murder, after which investigators secured a search warrant to investigate Wing's residence on Van Buren Road which happened to be just a few hundred yards down the road from the scene of the crime.

"What were you looking for at Freddie Wing's residence?" Barrett asked.

"We were told to look for knives specifically," Haley said.

St. Lawrence County voters back Trump, GOP Senate candidate, oppose Prop 1

St. Lawrence County voters favored Republicans Donald Trump for president and Michael D. Sapaicone for U.S. Senator while also opposing the controversial Proposition 1 during voting on Tuesday.

For president, Donald J. Trump and J.D. Vance, who ran on the Republican/Conservative Party lines, received 25,210 votes in St. Lawrence County. Democrats Kamala D. Harris and Tim Walz, on the Democratic and Working Families Party lines, received 17,502.

U.S. Senator Kirsten E. Gillibrand, a Democrat, won re-election, but St. Lawrence County voters favored her opponent, Republican Michael D. Sapaicone. He received 22,122 votes in St. Lawrence County, compared to 18,804 for Gillibrand. Diane Sare, the LaRouche Party candidate, tallied 148 from St. Lawrence County voters.

A total of 21,960 St. Lawrence County citizens voted against Proposition 1, which was approved statewide, while 18,050 in St. Lawrence County in favor.

The proposal will put protections in the state constitution against unequal treatment based on ethnicity, national origin, age, disability, and sex, including sexual orientation, gender identity and pregnancy. It will also protect against unequal treatment based on reproductive healthcare and autonomy.

Proponents say the measure would strengthen and codify protections of a number of rights, especially, but not limited to a woman's right to have an abortion. Opponents of the amendment believe it could limit parental rights by including age as a protected class. They say it would open the doors for children to make their own healthcare decisions. Concerns have also been raised that it would impact high school sports teams by possibly allowing transgender girls to play on girls sports teams.

All results are unofficial and do not include absentee ballots.

Simpson, Broadbent elected to village board

MASSENA – Democrat Chad Simpson and Republican David Broadbent were elected to the Massena Village Board on Tuesday.

Simpson received 1,899 votes and Broadbent had 1,799. Their challengers were Democrat Ronald LeRoux Jr., with 1,735 votes and Republican Brandon Webb, with 1,511.

A 25-year Massena resident, Simpson has served on the village board since being appointed to finish now-Mayor Greg Paquin's term after Paquin was elected mayor. He has worked as a high school teacher and coach.

Broadbent has lived in the Massena School District for 30 years and the village for 22 years. He recently retired. He ran unsuccessfully for Massena Central School Board the St. Lawrence County Legislature in recent years.

Political newcomer LeRoux has been a Massena resident since age 12 and has eight children. He is employed by ARC Health working with released prisoners who are HIV or Hep CPositive transition from prison to home life.

Webb, a Texas native, moved to the village in 2020 and works for Lavalley Transportation in Potsdam. He is also a New York State baseball umpire.

Trustee Shelyn Peets declined to seek re-election.

The results are unofficial and do not include absentee ballots.

Douglas Richard Bushey puts his ballot into the voting machine at the Massena Meals on Wheels building on Election Day. Over 400 had voted there by noon.

Stefanik easily wins sixth term for 21st District seat

Rep. Elise Stefanik easily won re-election to her sixth term representing the 21st Congressional district on Tuesday.

With 521 of 571 election districts reporting in the 15-county district, the Republican had received 208,787 votes by shortly after midnight on Wednesday, compared with 126,345 for her Democratic opponent, Paula Collins.

In St. Lawrence County, 25,497 voted in favor of Stefanik, while 16,598 cast ballots for Collins.

There are 492,2732 registered voters in the 21st Congressional district that includes all or parts of St. Lawrence, Jefferson, Clinton, Essex, Franklin, Fulton, Hamilton, Jefferson, Herkimer, Lewis, Montgomery, Oneida, Saratoga, Warren, Schoharie and Washington counties.

As chair of the House Republican Conference since 2021, Stefanik is the fourth-ranking House Republican. She has backing from Donald Trump supporters and was at one time on the short list as a potential vice presidential candidate.

During the campaign, Stefanik said she is "focused on lowering inflation, securing the border including increasing resources for our Northern border, supporting local small businesses and agriculture, standing with law enforcement, and as the chief advocate for Fort Drum soldiers and military families as well as our local veterans."

She champions the pro-life movement and opposes the use of federal dollars to fund abortions, has blamed the Biden administration for the influx of migrants, and is against a single-payer healthcare system or expanding Medicare.

Stefanik was 30 when first elected to the House in 2014, the youngest woman elected to Congress at the time.

Collins is a downstate cannabis tax attorney and former special education teacher who rented a residence in DeKalb while undertaking the campaign.

She says her views are very much in line with that of Presidential hopeful Kamala Harris.

Collins said Stefanik has had five terms to improve the lives of North Country residents and it's time to give someone else a chance.

She advocates fighting back against the anti-abortion movement, revisiting the bipartisan federal immigration bill that failed to pass by one vote, and moving towards a single-payer health care system to lower costs.

ocrat, faced no challenger and was re-elected. County Family Court Judge candidate Effie Kyriakopoulos, a Republican, had no opponent and won the seat.

Mark C. Walecyk won re-election to the 49th State Senate District with 11,911 votes. Another 2,779 voters did not make a choice in the race. He represents the western part of St. Lawrence County as well as Hamilton, Fulton, Jefferson, and

Village hopes facade work will be finished this year

Former Massena School of Business to be removed as part of DRI project

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA -- Seven projects have received funding through the village's Core of the Community Fund, which was established after the village was awarded $10 million through the Downtown Revitalization Initiative.

Village Administrator Monique Chatland said the three rounds of applications were a huge success, with a number of businesses applying for the funding.

She said the village recently held informational meetings for three grantees, a required step of the program.

Grant funds through the Core of the Community can range from $5,000 to $100,000 for the third she said.

Up to 75% of total project costs could be covered through the grant.

For round two, grants ranged from $10,000 to $50,000, she said.

With a sizable sum of money remaining with the program, requirements were changed for the final round to incentivize more applicants.

Business owner contributions were reduced to 25% and maximum awards could be as high as $100,000.

Chatland said that adjustment led to more applicants in the final round.

"We allocated approximately $525,000. We have approximately $15,000 left, but I'm assuming as construction goes there will be some unexpected things," Chatland said during a recent board meeting.

Chatland also touched on another project that has received DRI funding; the former Massena School of Business facade project.

That project, which is projected to come at a cost of $1.9 million, is a joint venture between the St. Lawrence County Industrial Development Agency and the village.

As part of the plan, officials have said that the facade of the building will be preserved and utilized as a streetscape for a new path that will lead into a green space for residents to enjoy, linking up to a planned river walk that is being funded through the DRI.

But before that can happen, the building must be demolished.

That process could take months to complete as asbestos removal and environmental reviews must be completed.

Atlantic Testing has been hired to conduct those tests as the project progresses, including daily air quality testing as asbestos is removed from the site.

Stabilization of the front of the structure will also be necessary as well, Chatland said.

"The plan is to have the interior, or what's left of it, down by the end of the year," she said.

Mayor Greg Paquin said he is hopeful the project will be well underway before snow flies but noted it is possible that the project is delayed given the age of the structure.

"Our hope is that it's done by the end of the year, that's best case scenario. If all goes according to plan we'll have a facade there but we'll see how demolition progresses," he said.

Town of Massena passes crypto mining regulations after years-long moratorium

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA -- The town of Massena now has comprehensive regulations for crypto mining operations after years of research, debates and review.

Town board members signed off on the regulations during the Sept. 19 board meeting, bringing an end to a six-year process that began after early operations utilized sea boxes to house their servers.

Following the discovery, town officials put a moratorium in place that was continually extended in three to six month intervals.

Officials signaled earlier this year that the regulations were nearing completion, with just a few tweaks possible before final approval was given.

The news also comes as welcome relief to one operation, North Country Colocation Services, as they seek to expand operations in the industrial zone.

NCCS has operated out of the former Alcoa East facility for years, but an expansion project was placed on hold as the moratorium was continually extended.

NCCS CEO David Fogel raised his concerns with town officials earlier this year, saying the moratorium proved worrisome for investors who were unsure if they wanted to commit $100 million to the project with regulations still in limbo.

At a previous town board meeting, Fogel said the planned expansion by NCCS would be no different than if Alcoa had sought to expand operations.

"There's all these extra regulations being imposed on us for expanding that wouldn't apply to other businesses. And, by the way, shouldn't apply to our business because they don't fit what we do. I think they do fit what the small operators do," Fogel said at the time.

Fogel said the regulations, as originally planned, were to address operators "on the side of the road" that cause a nuisance to people "because they're unsightly, make noise and are probably unsafe."

Though the regulations would grandfather in the existing operation, the expansion project would not be included, Fogel said.

"The problem is the wording to maybe five words, 'but any expansion thereof shall be subject to these regulations.' That's all we're asking to be resolved," he said.

Fogel said once that language is clarified, he can move forward and get a deal done with investors who would help finance the planned expansion.

"We simply want clarification of the language so that we can confidently move forward with our expansion project and to tell our investors that we can do this," he told board members.

Following his address to the board and over three dozen attendees, town officials began work to clarify the language of the regulations as it relates to expansion projects and industrial zones.

A review by the county planning board followed in June "out of an abundance of caution," according to Town Attorney Eric Gustafson.

Gustafson told town board members it was not a prerequisite to adopting the regulations, however "out of an abundance of caution" he wanted the County Planning Board to review the proposed regulations before the town adopts them.

"This would be the first time anyone has adopted regulations for such operations, so we want to be extra certain that everything is ready before we move forward," he said.

The review came back this summer, with only minor changes suggested.

Gustafson suggested board members adopt a few suggestions to tighten up the regulations but also recommended disregarding others he felt were not necessary.

With the regulations now complete, it appears NCCS will finally be able to move forward with the project, creating numerous construction jobs.

Fogel previously said that once the project is complete NCCS will likely be able to double the number of full-time employees, bringing the total to 180-200 total.

The comprehensive regulations will now ensure that seabed containers cannot be utilized as a structure to house the computers used for crypto mining, while also dictating what areas of the town such operations can be established, such as industrial zones.

As part of the regulations, officials also set standards for noise pollution and other factors that may impact residential areas nearby, as well as standards to mitigate negative impacts on the natural environment.

Two jailed on drug charges, bail jumping after traffic stop

Narcotics found during search of vehicle

BRASHER FALLS — Two people were jailed on various charges following a traffic stop Sunday on State Highway 11C, according to state police.

During the traffic stop, troopers discovered Collins and Moniere had a stay-away order of protection in place, so they were in violation.

Moniere reportedly had an active bench warrant out of Norfolk Town Court, and Woods had an active bench warrant out of Massena Town Court. All three were taken into custody.

During a search of the vehicle, numerous amounts of narcotic drugs and paraphernalia were located in the vehicle, police said.

Sergi’s Italian Restaurant and Pizzeria on Main Street, where it still stands today as a landmark in the community. The restaurant has hosted numerous events and gatherings for many families and organizations within our community.

Sam had a great fondness for horses. His passion led him to become a trainer and driver of harness horses where he further developed Sergi’s Stables.

He enjoyed traveling the country with horse trailer in tow, not only within New York State, but also New Jersey, Vermont, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Florida, and Ohio. He frequently traveled internationally to Canada, where he raced at Rideau Carleton in Ottawa, Woodbine Mohawk Park in Toronto, and Blue Bonnets in Montreal.

His patience and dedication came in developing young horses into future stars, which he had many.

Sam was an active member of the US Trotting Association, Canadian Trotting Association, the Italian American Club, and was a communicant of St. Mary’s Church.

Sam lived a life filled with the love of family and friends, caring for and helping others. His smile was genuine and open hearted, and contained the ability to overjoy any room.

His love for others showed each and every day with his charismatic qualities.

If you had the privilege to know him and accompany him at any table within his restaurant, you shared a piece of his joy.

His smiling face sitting at his table will be greatly missed by those who enter the front door of Sergi’s.

His children and grandchildren cherish the countless memories, life lessons, and hard work ethic he instilled in them all, not only at Sergi’s Italian Restaurant but Sergi’s Stables as well.

Jill Suzanna (Joyce) Egan, 82

Ogdensburg

OGDENSBURG - Jill Suzanne (Joyce) Egan, age 82, of Ogdensburg, NY, passed away peacefully at her home on Friday, October 25, 2024. Arrangements are under the care and direction of Fox & Murray Funeral Home.

Jill was born in Canton, NY, to the late Irving and Georgina (Farnsworth) Joyce. She earned her Bachelor's Degree in physical education from SUNY Brockport and later worked as a physical education teacher at Ogdensburg Free Academy and a health teacher at Parishville Hopkinton Central School, and later Potsdam Central School District.

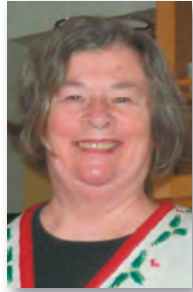

On August 14, 1965, Jill married her beloved husband, Vincent Terrence Egan, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Canton, NY.

Known for her vibrant spirit, Jill was the life of every gathering, a skilled entertainer, and an amazing cook. She spent her quiet time reading.

She and Vince traveled around the country in their RV, spending many happy winters in South Padre Island, Texas. Although she loved to travel, Jill was happiest when home on the St. Lawrence River, enjoying her beautiful view of the water and watching the ships as they passed through the St. Lawrence Seaway. Jill passed her love of the St. Lawrence on to her children and grandchildren who found their many visits to the St. Lawrence the highlight of their summers. Jill loved her time with the grandchildren, making each visit special. Her family eagerly awaited her weekly texts, filled with warmth and love.

Jill always stated that she won the husband lottery with Vince who was the love of her life. He was her anchor, and she was his skipper. They hit many waves and weathered storms together for 59 years. It's fitting to think that they've found their eternal safe harbor together, sitting in their chairs while enjoying the ships as they pass by on the river.

Second Circuit reinstates majority of CClA despite Supreme Court intervention

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

CANTON — The 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals has once again reinstated a large portion of the Concealed Carry Improvement Act (CCIA) months after the U.S. Supreme Court vacated the court's previous decision upholding the laws.

"Gun safety laws save lives and keep our streets safer. Today's ruling by the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit upholds the core tenets of the Concealed Carry Improvement Act, the common-sense measure I signed into law two years ago that is saving lives across New York. That's one reason why New York continues to have one of the lowest firearm mortality rates of any state in the nation. Public safety is my top priority, and I'll continue to fight gun violence and protect all New Yorkers," Governor Kathy Hochul said after the court upheld and reinstated much of the law.

The case in question, Antonyuk v. Nigreli, has been in the works for roughly two years now following the passage of the CClA following two mass shootings at a Tops Supermarket in Buffalo, NY, and the Uvalde, TX, school shooting.

Under the CClA, state legislators and Governor Kathy Hochul passed multiple laws that created new requirements to obtain a concealed carry license and governed firearm ownership in general, including a 16-hour course with two hours of range time, an extensive list of spaces where firearms are prohibited, the requirement to disclose all social media information to law enforcement, the requirement to disclose all firearms and persons in the home, along with a "good moral character" clause that gave licensing officers broad discretion of what constitutes

Supreme Court Justices had vacated the 2nd Circuit decision to uphold the controversial CClA, remanding the case back to the Appeals Court for another look.

In doing so, the Supreme Court had in essence reverted back to a Northern District court decision from Justice Glenn T. Suddaby that largely ruled the CClA to be unconstitutional until the 2nd Circuit weighed in again.

St. Lawrence County Attorney Steve Button has been working as counsel with Gun Owners of America on the Antonyuk case since county legislators approved his participation in Oct. 2022.

With the 2nd Circuit's new ruling in place a number of "sensitive spaces" that were struck by the Supreme Court's intervention are now back on the effective list.

No firearms will be permitted in urban parks, zoos, hospitals, menthol health or chemical dependency providers, bars and restaurants that allow for on site alcohol consumption, along with banquet halls, theaters, schools and governmental buildings.

A requirement to provide proof of "good moral character" has also been reinstated, a controversial measure that many critics of the legislation say gives licensing authorities broad and ambiguous discretion to deny an applicant.

Applicants will also once again be forced to remit information about cohabitants in the home, including children, grandchildren, spouses or partners and other habitants.

Enjoined in the decision, or struck by the court, is the requirement to disclose social media profiles for investigation, as well as a former restriction to carry on private lands that are open to the public.

Public parks not including urban zoos and parks are also enjoined by the decision.

Houses of worship are allowed to have armed security on site, a move that was not enjoined by the decision but led to statutory changes.

Gun rights organizations previously argued that under the original interpretation of the CClA, anecdotally 97% of the state would have been considered a prohibited space.

Even after language was adopted in the 2023 budget bill that excluded the Adirondack Park and Catskills Park as prohibited spaces, critics of the legislation said nearly half of the state was still a prohibited space, essentially nullifying a conceal carry license.

Court documents show that justices hearing arguments took a very different approach from the 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals on the scope of the 2nd Amendment, while also taking a very narrow view of standing.

Water buffalo raised in Hammond

Did you know there is a water buffalo farm in the north country? Water buffalos have been raised in Venezuela for over a century, which is where Jose first came to know them as a boy. He and his partner Erin are passionate about these animals, marveling at their strength as a dual-purpose breed, valued for both fluid milk and meat. They chose to move to NYS, settling in Hammond earlier this spring. The resilient water buffalos are grass fed, rotating through four pastures and making their own wallowing pits along the way. Rocking TT Bar sells their USDA processed cuts direct to consumers with future plans to develop the farm offerings. This photo is taken at Rocking TT Bar.

Community invitation to offer insight into food system

Three area organizations are collaborating to gain insight into the local food system, inviting the community to join them for a free roundtable discussion. Cornell Cooperative Extension of St. Lawrence County, the Adirondack Food System Network and GardenShare are gathering first hand knowledge and experience about challenges and opportunities related to the food system, in an effort to build a shared understanding for collective action and intervention.

The roundtable will be held from 3-5pm on Thursday, November 14th at the Extension Learning Farm in Canton. There is an optional tour of the farm before the roundtable from 2-3pm. Refreshments will be served. This roundtable is part of a series being held across northern New York from mid-October to mid-December 2024.

This event is open to people working in the local food system in a variety of ways including farmers, grocers, business owners, food pantry operators, non-profits and more. While the event is free and open to the public, RSVP is required for planning purposes. Register for the roundtable at the Adirondack Food System Network page at www.adkfoodsystem.org/. Contact the Local Food Program Leader M. "Flip" Filippi with questions at (315) 379-9192, ext. 229 or mpf65@cornell.edu.

Cornell Cooperative Extension is an employer and educator recognized for valuing AA/EEO, Protected Veterans, and Individuals with Disabilities and provides equal program and employment opportunities.

Growing farm-to-school purchasing and education through collaboration

By M. Flip Filippi
Local Foods Program Leader

Exciting activities are afoot with the Fresh-cut Farm-to-School Program, an initiative that buys tens of thousands of pounds of local vegetables and fruits and lightly processes them in the Harvest Kitchen.

Since 2018, this three way collaboration with St. Lawrence-Lewis BOCES, Cornell Cooperative Extension of St. Lawrence County, and Big Spoon Kitchen has supplied many north country school districts with delicious local produce for student lunches.

The partners have been proactive in seeking funding to expand the program and develop the food system in northern NY and was recently successful with two grant awards. The first includes $99,235 in funding from NYS Agriculture and Markets to Cornell Cooperative Extension of St. Lawrence County. The second proposal is $99,814 awarded to St. Lawrence-Lewis BOCES from the Patrick Leahy Farm to School Grant Program for a total project cost of $191,214.

The funding will support growing the Fresh-cut program from 65,000 pounds of finished product purchased by area districts in 2023-24 school year to over 100,000 pounds in 2024-2025. Additional activities include contracting with the Industrial Development Agency (IDA) for a comprehensive business analysis identifying areas of improvement and best equipment investments.

Moving healthy fruits and vegetables from local farm fields onto student lunch trays requires many steps and each partner has a unique role. The Harvest Kitchen at the Extension Learning Farm in Canton provides a commercial kitchen space to prepare the produce and store raw ingredients and finished product, while advising on process improvements. Big Spoon Kitchen facilitates the purchasing of produce from farmers, coordinates the deliveries to the Harvest Kitchen and prepares the fruits and vegetables into ready-to-use fresh ingredients including apple wedges, carrot coins, salsa mix, coleslaw mix, and diced butternut squash, plus frozen corn on the cob and green beans. These minimally processed foods simplify lunch preparation for school cafeterias. SLL BOCES manages the orders from schools and delivers to the districts each Monday, ensuring students' ability to enjoy farm fresh produce the entire school year.

This consistent weekly purchase of lightly processed produce is a cornerstone of the program's strength. Kudos to the food service directors and supportive cafeterias which includes orders from Brasher Falls, Canton, Clifton-Fine, Colton-Pierrepoint, Edwards-Knox, Gouverneur, Hammond, Harrisville, Hermon-DeKalb, Heuvelton, Lisbon, Lyme, Madrid-Waddington, Morristown, Norwood-Norfolk, Ogdensburg, Potsdam, Sackets Harbor, and Watertown.

The success of the Fresh-Cut Farm to School Program is also built upon farmers and their high quality product. The program sources its fruits and vegetables from 13 local and regional farms. The most popular product is apple wedges. The apples come from Applewood Orchards in Rensselaer Falls, Canton Apples in Canton, Parishville Center Orchards in Parishville, Adirondack Growers in Malone, plus Forrence and Northern Orchards in Peru. Carrots and cabbage are supplied by Kent Family Growers in Lisbon. When carrots from St. Lawrence County become scarcer in the late winter, procurement stretches into central NY. Sweet corn is sourced from Phillips Agriculture in Heuvelton. Tomatoes, peppers, onions, and cabbage come from Martin's Farmstand in Potsdam and Mose Miller in Brasher Falls. Herschberger Farm provides butternut squash and this year has grown 20,000 pounds that will be processed 600 pounds at a time to deliver to school as peeled, diced cubes throughout the winter.

Director of School Food Service Artie Frego explains, "The Farm to School partnership between St. Lawrence-Lewis BOCES, Cornell Cooperative Extension, and Big Spoon Kitchen is a win-win for schools, farmers, and communities. By promoting healthy eating habits and supporting local agriculture, this partnership is helping to improve the well-being of students and the local community."

Co-owner and operator of Big Spoon Kitchen Will Trithart says, "Building up the farm to school program has been a rewarding and fun process for us at Big Spoon. It has helped our business develop relationships with new producers in the area and employ more people to work with local food. Special thanks to Joshua Martin who has been managing our Harvest Kitchen processing this year and to Flip Filippi for her tireless, patient and optimistic support for the program from day one."

Enhancements for the 2024-2025 school year include more Farm-to-School educational offerings such as hands-on lessons in classrooms, multi-stop food system field trips and most excitingly, a Spring 2025 revival of the Junior Iron Chef Competition where teams develop recipes and compete against one another.

Foraging 'tasting tour' held

The Master Gardener Volunteers of St. Lawrence County found many treats on their foraging 'tasting tour' at the Extension Learning Farm on Halloween. Led by Pat Banker, a wild edible expert at Franklin County Extension, the group learned about historic uses of dandelion root, wild carrot, stinging nettles and more. The gardeners brought the results of their 'free-range shopping' inside to the Harvest Kitchen to make a meal of wild stir fry, roasted dandelion root tea, sunchoke fries and white pine cookies.

GUNS . . .

Gun rights groups will continue to sue in court

In one section, justices commented that church assemblies were not even within the gamut of protected assemblies under the 1st Amendment, a stance that has been continually overturned in Federal Courts that have in fact said churches are in fact covered under the 1st Amendment.

Antonyuk was launched following the now famous NYSRPA v. Bruen decision in 2022 that greatly expanded gun rights.

Under the ruling, many gun rights organizations have since launched lawsuits against state lawmakers, arguing laws passed to ban “assault rifles” and high capacity magazines, among others, violate the 2nd Amendment.

Button said cases are now weighed against a historical analogue that must be consistent with those passed at the founding of the nation and when the 2nd Amendment was ratified in 1791.

In many cases, state lawmakers and attorneys general have since pivoted to an 1868 interpretation of the laws, arguing that post-Reconstruction Era urban centers were on the rise and further restrictions on firearms became necessary for the safety of the public.

But critics of that interpretation say those laws were founded in racist rhetoric as governments sought to keep firearms out of the hands of Native Americans, freed slaves and former Confederate soldiers and sympathizers who may harbor those allegiances post-Civil War.

Options moving forward for GOA include taking up the cases again and appealing up to the Supreme Court once again or accepting the remand order and litigating the case at the District Court level again and working up to the 2nd Circuit.

In a public statement following the court’s decision, GOA officials signaled they may in fact be taking the case to the Supreme Court, however no official action has been announced as of press time.

“This is an outrageous ruling from a court of anti-gun judges. The 2nd Circuit got it wrong the first time, SCOTUS (Supreme Court) told them to try again and this nearly identical ruling is a slap in the face to every gun owner in New York. We will continue the fight in Antonyuk v. Nigreli,” GOA officials wrote.

There are no resellers or direct sale vendors at this event."

Shoppers can now enjoy a full weekend experience, as this year's market will take place on Saturday and Sunday, a shift from previous years' Friday and Saturday format. "Our goal is to enhance community accessibility to the event and boost sales for our participating businesses," said Puleo. Shoppers are also encouraged to explore the local eateries in Downtown Potsdam, in addition to enjoying the offerings from Maxcy Hall's Concession Stand, which will be open throughout the market.

Admission to the market is $5 cash. Ages 12 and younger get in free.

The last hour of admission, on Sunday, December 8th, from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. will be free.

Sports tourism survey yields positive results

CANTON -- With the results in hand from the sport tourism survey recently completed the St. Lawrence County Chamber of Commerce, in partnership with Cimarron Global Solutions, is now in the final stages of strategy development for the county-wide Sport Tourism initiative, the chamber said in a press release.

The recent survey, which sought to gather local insights on the county's potential as a sport tourism destination, saw an enthusiastic response from exactly 100 participants—far exceeding initial expectations, the chamber said.

Analysis of the results is being used to further inform the foundational strategy being developed for the Chamber's sport tourism initiative, which focuses on a growing sport tourism segment where travelers are drawn to destinations for sports events or activities, the press release said.

The chamber said that sport tourism is poised to play a transformative role in St. Lawrence County, and the survey's exceptional turnout highlights a strong community interest and engagement in developing the county's sport-related offerings.

The survey assessed aspects of sport tourism where the county may excel and also addressed potential challenges and shortcomings, the press release said.

Responses to the survey revealed a high level of community engagement and support for local sporting venues, reports the chamber, including schools and dedicated sports facilities, underscoring the region's readiness to embrace and enhance its sport tourism potential.

Respondents were enthusiastic about the diverse range of outdoor recreation opportunities, the county's well-developed trail systems, and the region's natural beauty, the chamber said.

Participants also highlighted a connection between sports activities and the region's cultural and natural heritage, which emerged as a significant theme, citing activities such as lacrosse and marathon canoe racing that not only engage visitors but also preserve and highlight the unique character of St. Lawrence County.

The survey also pointed out the need for improved infrastructure, the chamber reported, including better-maintained trails and expanded road access for ATVs. The active involvement of local organizations in advocating for these improvements promises to enhance the county's appeal as a sport tourism destination.

ism destination. Respondents expressed concerns about the environmental impact of certain activities and emphasized the need for sustainable practices to protect the region's natural beauty, said the chamber.

The sport tourism project is approximately 50% complete both in the project tasks and the timeline with the final deliverables slated for September 2025.

Air Products contributes $5,000 for Massena FD golf tournament

MASSENA -- The Massena Fire Department has received a $5,000 donation from Air Products, Inc. to sponsor the department's 2024 Fundraising Golf Tournament.

"This significant contribution highlights Air Products' continued commitment to the local community and its vital role in supporting the first responders who serve and protect it," Massena Fire officials wrote.

Fire Chief Patrick O'Brien expressed gratitude for the donation, emphasizing how crucial partnerships like the one with Air Products are for ensuring the department has the resources necessary to address the increasing complexity and volume of emergency calls.

"This donation will not only help make our 2024 fundraising golf tournament a success but also ensure our department can continue to invest in the tools, equipment, and training our firefighters to keep the community safe," Chief O'Brien said.

The collaborative relationship between Air Products and the Massena Fire Department demonstrates a shared dedication to the well-being of the community, officials said.

"We are proud to support the Massena Fire Department," Air Products officials wrote.

"Our first responders are at the heart of the community, and ensuring they have the resources they need to respond effectively is essential to all of us."

As the call volumes for the Massena Fire Department continue to rise and the complexities of emergency situations grow, donations like this are instrumental in keeping the department well-prepared and equipped, Massena Fire officials said.

Events like the Firehouse Cup help bridge the gap between community needs and available resources.

Massena PAL receives $30k from Alcoa Foundation

MASSENA -- The Alcoa Foundation recently granted $30,000 to the Police Activities League of Massena (PAL). Alcoa Foundation supports community resiliency programs aimed at increasing access to education, health, clean water, STEM-related school programs and student mentorship, and food security.

The grant will be used to support new after-school programming during the 2024-2025 school year.

"The overarching theme is Environmental Literacy and STEM," said Zachary Monroe, PAL Executive Director. "We will be running five to six 'clubs' every week throughout the year. Every 5 weeks all of the children in our program will select which 'club' they would like to belong to. A variety of activities in each 'club' focus on Environmental Literacy helping the children to become Environmental Ambassadors. The 'clubs' will include a First Lego League Robotics team which will prepare to compete at Clarkson University's regional event, a STEM club, a Healthy Habits club, a cooking club, and an Engineering club. We know that children learn in different ways and have different interests. We are hoping to engage and impact the children more via these different interest groups, all while helping them grow in their knowledge of environmental literacy."

Chrissy Moody, Alcoa Massena Operations HR Business Partner, toured the facility and presented the check on behalf of Alcoa Foundation to Monroe and some of the students that attended.

"We are excited to support PAL and the new programming. This approach not only enhances student's academic achievement, but it also inspires them to pursue careers in STEM, contributing to a more sustainable future," stated Moody.

MURDER... Adam Smith trial continues in Canton

Upon investigating, Haley said multiple knives were found at the residence and taken back to SP Gouverneur for latent fingerprint testing.

No conclusive results suggested Wing used any knives at the residence during the course of the homicide.

Durham autopsy

After completing his work at Freddie Wing's residence around 12:30 p.m. or so, Haley said he made his way to Canton-Potsdam Hospital where Ronald Durham's autopsy was being conducted.

Haley said the autopsy took "multiple hours," which Dr. Scott Lapoint also testified to on the first day of the trial on Oct. 22.

Haley identified multiple State Police Investigators who were in attendance and brought a camera to document the process.

After completing the autopsy, Haley said he took multiple articles of clothing, boots, knives and other personal belongings to SP Massena for safekeeping before they could be transported to Ray Brook for further testing.

He said a number of swabs were also used and a vial of blood was drawn as well.

"Why did you take a vial of blood?" Barrett asked.

"It's standard practice to do a blood draw, at least two vials, for testing after a suspicious death," Haley said.

"So, why did you only have one vial then?" Barrett asked.

"Because there was significant blood loss. There wasn't much blood left," Haley said.

Durham cell phone found

Haley said his work on the Durham case did not finish at the time of his Feb. 12 autopsy.

On Feb. 15, Haley said he received a call from his superior once again to report to Gouverneur to collect a cell phone that was believed to have been evidence in Durham's case.

Haley said he was responsible for processing the phone, including dusting the phone for prints, however no fingerprints were deemed identifiable, he said.

He said he also took a swab of what was believed to be blood between the phone and the case. That swab was also submitted into evidence by Pasqua.

The phone was later taken to the FIU team in Ray Brook, where Haley said he and other investigators carried out a detailed investigation of the phone's contents.

Not just garbage

Police were issued a search warrant on March 9 to search Smith's truck, at which time Haley said he began his investigation.

As was shown in multiple photos in court, Haley documented multiple spots in Smith's truck that he said he believed to be blood. All spots were swabbed and submitted to the Albany crime lab for testing.

But things took a turn when Haley and investigators began to open the three garbage bags contained in Smith's truck.

Originally thought to just be garbage by Cortland City Patrolman Austin Fisk, the bags had been left in the bed of Smith's truck until Haley and State Police took possession of the vehicle on March 8.

Haley said when he and investigators opened the three bags they found multiple spots that they believed to be blood, along with seat covers and red and black gloves that also appeared to have blood on them.

Upon opening the second bag, Haley said he found a wallet with a photo, one dollar and two dollar bills.

Marilyn Durham had testified that her father only ever used his wallet for his ID cards, photos and "just two dollar bills."

The wallet, which also appeared to have blood on it, contained a photo with writing on the back that said "To Huck."

Money bands for $1,000 were also found in the bag as well, Haley said.

In the other black bag were even more money bands, many of which were for $1,000, along with a black bandana believed to have blood on it, along with a Brisk bottle that also appeared to have blood on it.

As investigators went through the contents, Haley said they found a black and green handled Gerber fixed blade knife.

Photos shown in court show the knife blade was clean but the handle had blood on it.

As well, Haley said he found two check books in the bag, both of which had Ronald Durham's name and address on the checks.

Both were covered in blood based on photos shown in court.

"Bloody bills"

Former Sandy Creek Dollar General store manager Patricia Lee took the stand Oct. 29 to detail her encounter with Smith on Feb. 11.

According to Lee, Smith came to the store around 1 p.m. and purchased two Apple Pay cards with $500 cash, all $100 bills.

She said when he handed her the cash, there appeared to be blood on each bill "about an inch wide or so."

Lee said Smith purchased the cards at 1:02 p.m., as was shown on security footage from the store, along with a receipt of the transaction that was presented in court.

Just five minutes later, Smith was seen on the footage again. This time he purchased a USB charger and Steam card for $100.

Upon entering a second time, Lee said Smith apologized for his previous behavior when "he appeared agitated" because she was not immediately available to cash him out.

"He said he was having a bad day because his uncle was just murdered," she commented.

She said Smith again paid with a $100 bill with the same distinct red stain that she believed to be blood.

Lee said she pulled the bills from the cash register moments later and used hand sanitizer to clean them, noting that Smith made a comment "that he had been painting earlier that day" but it was her belief that it was blood.

Week one wrap up

The introduction of evidence police say is crucial to the case comes one week after a contentious start to the trial.

Opening statements proved to be problematic, with Pasqua objecting on multiple occasions to statements made by Barrett.

Just two days later, Barrett made a motion for a mistrial due to the introduction of evidence by the District Attorney's Office that he claimed was to be suppressed based on rulings in pre-trial hearings.

That motion was eventually overruled, though Pasqua was forced to show dash camera footage of Smith's traffic stop in Cortland without any audio.

Barrett had argued that the footage and audio should have been inadmissible in court but jurors were able to view the footage.

Multiple witnesses were also called to the stand, including friends and family members of Durham, all of whom testified that Durham was a friendly but frail old man who had many friends.

DEAL...

Agreement will bring $300k to Massena

Air Products will contract with C&S Companies and potentially other companies to perform the construction work.

The village will be responsible for all sums due to Labella Associates from the escrowed funds, with Air Products responsible for all payments due under the construction contracts.

As for the village's financial obligations, they will be covered through state grant funding and bonding.

Officials say the expected costs, along with seeking and securing grant or bond funding will be shared equally between both entities.

Any costs associated that fall to the village will be covered through bonding, village officials say.

Air Products will fund phase two through funds held in escrow. Once the proceeds of the grants and bond financing become available, the village will reimburse the entirety of the funds paid by Air Products out of the escrowed funds.

Officials say Air Products 50% share of the phase 2 scope funding will be recouped by the village through the water supply agreement.

As part of the deal, Air Products will also reimburse the village for the costs associated with professional consultants in connection with both phase one and phase two of the project.

Consultant expenses can include, but are not limited to, review of plans, proposals, memoranda, studies, correspondence and other documents, preparation of documents related to applications and other such documents.

With the agreement signed, Air Products will now deposit $150,000 into the escrow account, with $50,000 to be used in phase one for securing an engineering firm and $100,000 to be used during phase two for reimbursable funds to the village as per the agreement.

All monthly invoices associated with both phases will be reviewed by the village for accuracy and validity of expenses.

Upon review and verification, the village is authorized to withdraw the monies from the escrow account to dirtily pay the sums set forth in the invoice, according to the agreement.

If the escrow account falls below 20% of the initial balance, Air Products will replenish the account up to the $50,000 under phase one and $100,000 under phase two within 15 calendar days of a receipt of notice from the village.

If Air Products fails to meet those obligations, the village will not be required to meet any obligations under the scope until the escrow account balance has been replenished.

Officials say they will now begin preparing for phase two of the project after executing agreements with engineering firms as per the contract.

Air Products officials have said they hope to have the facility online by the end of 2025 or beginning of 2026.
