Village pulls trigger on study

Flooding showed mitigation needed

BY ADAM ATKINSON
North Country This Week

POTSDAM — The village is moving forward with getting a new engineering study completed focusing on the municipality's flooding issues.

The village board voted at their Nov. 4 meeting to authorize Village Mayor Alexandra Jacobs Wilke to circulate a request for qualifications to engineering companies to do the study.

The study, which will update several older studies the village has on file, is expected to be the first step for the village to apply for grant funding for future storm water mitigation projects.

The need for the mitigation was recently brought to light during the Aug. 9 flooding event, when multiple neighborhoods and streets in the village, like many other areas for the region, were inundated with water from a hurricane powered storm front.

However, several neighborhoods in the village, notably those in the areas of the crosstown canal deal with chronic high water issues. Members of those communities have formed the Potsdam Flood-free Coalition to open up communication and help promote forward momentum on fixing the issue.

The resolution approved by the village

Canton names Cole as new police chief

Santimaw set to retire after 26 years at department

BY PAUL MITCHELL
North Country This Week

CANTON — It took the Village of Canton just one month to hire a new chief of police.

Current Chief James Santimaw announced his retirement in late September, prompting the village board to initiate a search for his replacement.

Following a joint meeting with the Canton Town Board on Tuesday night, then reconvening into executive session, village leaders approved the appointment of Ryan Cole as the new police chief. Cole officially accepted the chief's position Wednesday morning.

Cole will assume the police department leadership on Nov. 21, according to Canton Mayor Michael Dalton. Cole is scheduled to be sworn in at the village board's Nov. 20 monthly meeting.

Cole joined the Canton police force in 2014. He is currently a sergeant and has experience as an investigator, instructor and Field Training Officer.

"Ryan is highly respected by both his fellow officers and those interviewed as part of the promotion process," Dalton said.

Cole attended Monroe Community College where he obtained his AAS in Police Science and followed that up at SUNY Canton with a BS in Criminal Investigations. He then attended the David Sullivan St. Lawrence County Law Enforcement Academy.

Cole's salary will be $95,981 and will climb to $97,939 after his three-month probationary period. Santimaw is expected to officially retire in January 2025. He will assist Cole in the transition period. Santimaw was sworn in as police chief in July 2016.

He joined the Canton Police Department as a patrol officer in 1998 and was promoted to sergeant in 2003.

Adam Smith trial continues in Canton Autopsies and murder weapons discussed at trial

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

State Police Investigators have testified that they believe a knife recovered from Adam Smith's impounded truck is the weapon used to murder Ronald "Huck" Durham on Feb. 11, 2023.

Smith stands accused of murdering Durham and William Freeman on March 2, 2023 in the town of Rossie.

Murder weapon match?

During his cross examination by defense attorney Brian Barrett,

Investigator Daniel Haley was asked about the knife that police found in a garbage bag found in the back of Smith's impounded 2016 Ford F-150 that was secured in Cortland.

Barrett asked for a timeline of the discovery of evidence, which Haley said occurred on March 9, nearly four weeks after Durham's murder on Feb. 11.

Barrett asked Haley if he had spoken to Patrolman Austin Fisk of the Cortland City Police Department, to which Haley replied he had not due to Fisk being on vacation at the time he was informed of Smith's truck being in Cortland City Police impound.

Barrett called into question the duration of time between the murder and discovery of the knife, suggesting it could be difficult to prove the knife was used.

But during redirect by District Attorney Gary Pasqua, Haley said Dr. Scott Lapoint, who conducted the autopsy on Durham on Feb. 12, had commented that one injury sustained to Durham's chin was consistent with a partially serrated blade.

Haley said the blade of the Gerber knife recovered from Smith's truck was a partially serrated blade.

Patricia Woods, manager of the Gouverneur ACE Hardware, confirmed that Smith purchased a 10" Gerber fixed blade knife at the store just weeks prior to Durham's murder as well.

Searching Wing's residence

Shortly after the death of Ronald Durham on Feb. 11, police investigated Freddie Wing's involvement in the homicide.

Haley said he was told on Feb. 12 that Wing had confessed to the murder, after which investigators secured a search warrant to investigate Wing's residence on Van Buren Road which happened to be just a few hundred yards down the road from the scene of the crime.

"What were you looking for at Freddie Wing's residence?" Barrett asked.

"We were told to look for knives specifically," Haley said.

Upon investigating, Haley said multiple knives were found at the residence and taken back to SP Gouverneur for latent fingerprint testing.

Canton expects 20-cent hike in tax rate

BY PAUL MITCHELL
North Country This Week

CANTON – The Canton Town Board is expected to adopt a 2025 town budget that will see a 20-cent per $1,000 assessed value increase in the tax rate at its monthly board meeting on Nov. 13.

A public hearing on the spending plan was held Monday night with no public comment.

According to Town Supervisor Mary Ann Ashley, the projected preliminary spending plan is $4,042,094.84, garnering a difference of $247,957.80 increase in spending.

The 2024 tax rate is currently $2.95/$1000 which raised $1,144,127 in property taxes.

"We stayed within the tax cap for 2024. It is proposed to increase the tax rate to $3.15/$1000, raising $1,283,626 in property taxes. This is a 20-cent/1000 increase adding a total increase of $61,125 additional monies. We will go over the tax cap," noted Ashley. The Town property valuation went from $403,163,233 to $407,500,325. An increase in valuation of properties of $4,337,092.

"The reality of the 2025 Budget is that we need to override the tax cap. This is due to the rising operating and health insurance costs, contractual obligations, unexpected costs of the Miner Street Road Project, Solar Pilot and Host Community agreements, the negative impact of the Debbie Storm, usage of fund balance, and the Town doing a full Revaluation of all town properties by contracting with GAR Associates," said Ashley in an earlier North Country This Week article.

The proposed base salaries of elected town officials are $22,500 for supervisor; $6,244.71 for four council members; $71,719.26 for highway superintendent; $48,976.22 for town clerk; and $33,537.18 for two town justices

Village board okays retirements of employees with combined 79 years of service

BY ADAM ATKINSON
North Country This Week

POTSDAM — The village board of trustees has approved two fire department memberships and signed off on three retirements of village employees who combined have a total of 79 years of service to the village.

The resolutions approving the personnel changes were made at the village board's Nov. 5 meeting.

First, the board approved two new fire department members.

Both Nicholas Gruda of Niskayu-na, NY, and Sage Demers of Ghent, NY, were approved by the trustees and mayor as new Potsdam Fire Department department members.

Each new member has received a favorable vote from the department and passed a satisfactory physical exam.

The board also accepted "with regret" the retirement of Brian Paige as chief operator of the Village of Potsdam Water Treatment Plant.

Paige's retirement will begin Nov. 15.

The village thanked Paige for 20 years of service at the Village of Potsdam Water Treatment Plant.

The retirement of Audie Jerome, working crew leader with the Village of Potsdam Department of Public Works, was also accepted "with regret" by the village board.

Jerome, 36-year employee with the Village of Potsdam DPW was thanked by the board for his service.

The board also accepted "with regret" the retirement of Kenneth Clemons, working crew leader with the Village of Potsdam Department of Public Works.

Paving on hold at former McDonald's

BY PAUL MITCHELL
North Country This Week

CANTON – The vacant parcel at 60-64 Main Street that once housed a McDonald's restaurant will be snow-covered before it's covered in asphalt.

At a joint meeting of the town and village boards on Tuesday, Oct. 29, it was decided to hold off on paving that area until the spring, citing "unexpectedly high" bids to do the paving work.

The matter was discussed briefly with Mayor Michael Dalton mentioning the possibility of seeking a quote from the same company [Paverite, Carthage] that paved Miner Street.

"It's on hold until the spring," Dalton stated.

The McDonald's building was torn down in June, leaving a barren area on Main Street for a possible use as a parking lot. JEDA Environmental Services of Massena handled the demolition work at a cost of $64,260.

When the town and village purchased the McDonald's property and adjacent parking lot for $295,000 in July 2021, the idea then was to tear it down to create additional space for a proposed Canton Municipal Building project. But in March 2022, the plans fizzled when the cost figures to build a new municipal building surpassed $25 million.

A joint town and village Building Committee continues to explore options for renovations or a rebuild of the 60 Main Street building.

Voting machine replaced; man makes threat at polls

BY JIMMY LAWTON
North Country This Week

St. Lawrence County Elections officials reported minor problems and at least one disturbance in which police were called on election day.

St. Lawrence County Republican Elections Commissioner Tom Nichols said a jammed machine in Hammond required a replacement machine to be brought in from Canton early Tuesday morning.

Nichols said a bi-partisan team was on hand to ensure ballots were transitioned to the new machine and properly tallied in what was a seamless process.

"They had a mechanical issue where the ballots were jamming," he said. "But people were still able to cast ballots, they just weren't counted electronically until they were transitioned to the other machine."

Nichols said that a disturbance in Fowler required a call for police assistance after a man threatened to burn down the polling place.

An investigation determined a male who is a convicted felon attempted to vote, and his status indicated he was not re-registered since being released from prison, police said. The man allegedly became irate and started making threatening remarks such as burning the place down and returning with a firearm.

Police did not report any injuries.

In Hannawa Falls Nichols said there was a disturbance after a man grew angry after he found out his voting status had been changed to inactive.

Nichols said this happens when mail sent to voters is returned to the board of elections.

"When that happens we have to change the status to inactive," he said.

Nichols said it's a common problem for people who have their mail stopped while they are in Florida.

"It's something we are required to do," he said.

Nichols said the idea behind the requirement is to ensure that people actually live at the addresses they are registered at.

Nichols said overall the turnout seems to be good. He reported between 12,000 and 13,000 early voters in St. Lawrence County and said polls appeared too busy today throughout the county.

Majority of concealed carry act reinstated; county attorney has worked

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

CANTON — The 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals has once again reinstated a large portion of the Concealed Carry Improvement Act (CCIA) months after the U.S. Supreme Court vacated the court's previous decision upholding the laws.

"Gun safety laws save lives and keep our streets safer. Today's ruling by the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit upholds the core tenets of the Concealed Carry Improvement Act, the common-sense measure I signed into law two years ago that is saving lives across New York. That's one reason why New York continues to have one of the lowest firearm mortality rates of any state in the nation. Public safety is my top priority, and I'll continue to fight gun violence and protect all New Yorkers," Governor Kathy Hochul said after the court upheld and reinstated much of the law.

The case in question, Antonyuk v. Nigrel, has been in the works for roughly two years now following the passage of the CCIA following two mass shootings at a Tops Supermarket in Buffalo, NY, and the Uvalde, TX, school shooting.

Under the CCIA, state legislators and Governor Kathy Hochul passed multiple laws that created new requirements to obtain a concealed carry license and governed firearm ownership in general, including a 16-hour course with two hours of range time, an extensive list of spaces where firearms are prohibited, the requirement to disclose all social media information to law enforcement, the requirement to disclose all firearms and persons in the home, along with a "good moral character" clause that gave licensing officers broad discretion of what constitutes "good moral character."

Supreme Court Justices had vacated the 2nd Circuit decision to uphold the controversial CCIA, remanding the case back to the Appeals Court for another look.

In doing so, the Supreme Court had in essence reverted back to a Northern District court decision from Justice Glenn T. Suddaby that largely ruled the CCIA to be unconstitutional until the 2nd Circuit weighed in again.

St. Lawrence County Attorney

Steve Button has been working as counsel with Gun Owners of America on the Antonyuk case since county legislators approved his participation in Oct. 2022.

With the 2nd Circuit's new ruling in place a number of "sensitive spaces" that were struck by the Supreme Court's intervention are now back on the effective list.

No firearms will be permitted in urban parks, zoos, hospitals, mental health or chemical dependency providers, bars and restaurants that allow for on site alcohol consumption, along with banquet halls, theaters, schools and governmental buildings.

A requirement to provide proof of "good moral character" has also been reinstated, a controversial measure that many critics of the legislation say gives licensing authorities broad and ambiguous discretion to deny an applicant.

Applicants will also once again be forced to remit information about cohabitants in the home, including children, grandchildren, spouses or partners and other habitants.

Enjoined in the decision, or struck by the court, is the requirement to disclose social media profiles for investigation, as well as a former restriction to carry on private lands that are open to the public.

Public parks not including urban zoos and parks are also enjoined by the decision.

Houses of worship are allowed to have armed security on site, a move that was not enjoined by the decision but led to statutory changes.

Gun rights organizations previously argued that under the original interpretation of the CCIA, anecdotally 97% of the state would have been considered a prohibited space.

Even after language was adopted in the 2023 budget bill that excluded the Adirondack Park and Catskills Park as prohibited spaces, critics of the legislation said nearly half of the state was still a prohibited space, essentially nullifying a concealed carry license.

Court documents show that justices hearing arguments took a very different approach from the 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals on the scope of the 2nd Amendment, while also taking a very narrow view of standing.

In one section, justices commented that church assemblies were not even within the gamut of protected assemblies under the 1st Amendment, a stance that has been continually overturned in Federal Courts that have in fact said churches are in fact covered under the 1st Amendment.

Antonyuk was launched following the now famous NYSRPA v. Bruen decision in 2022 that greatly expanded gun rights.

Under the ruling, many gun rights organizations have since launched lawsuits against state lawmakers, arguing laws passed to ban "assault rifles" and high capacity magazines, among others, violate the 2nd Amendment.

Button said cases are now weighed against a historical analogue that must be consistent with those passed at the founding of the nation and when the 2nd Amendment was ratified in 1791.

In many cases, state lawmakers and attorneys general have since pivoted to an 1868 interpretation of the laws, arguing that post-Reconstruction Era urban centers were on the rise and further restrictions on firearms became necessary for the safety of the public.

But critics of that interpretation say those laws were founded in racist rhetoric as governments sought to keep firearms out of the hands of Native Americans, freed slaves and former Confederate soldiers and sympathizers who may harbor those allegiances post-Civil War.

Options moving forward for GOA include taking up the cases again and appealing up to the Supreme Court once again or accepting the remand order and litigating the case at the District Court level again and working up to the 2nd Circuit.

In a public statement following the court's decision, GOA officials signaled they may in fact be taking the case to the Supreme Court, however no official action has been announced as of press time.

"This is an outrageous ruling from a court of anti-gun judges. The 2nd Circuit got it wrong the first time, SCOTUS (Supreme Court) told them to try again and this nearly identical ruling is a slap in the face to every gun owner in New York. We will continue the fight in Antonyuk v. Nigrel," GOA officials wrote.

board at their Nov. 4 meeting said the study will "identify and characterize measures to increase the effectiveness, capacity and resiliency in the face of Climate Change, of the Village of Potsdam's stormwater management infrastructure."

The resolution will allocate $50,000 from the American Recovery and Reinvestment Plan grant funds to pay for the cost of the study.

"We hear the urgency, from that committee (Flood-Free Coalition) and from our community," said Jacobs Wilke earlier in the meeting during her comments. The mayor was speaking about the village conducting an updated engineering study on the flooding issue. The study would be a precursor to the village being able to apply for funding for any mitigation work.

"I understand that it's frustrating to hear that we need another study, but we really do. Our information is helpful, but outdated from the ones that we had in the past," Wilke said.

"But my commitment should it be funded and should it be completed is to see it through," she said.

The mayor said she and village officials have been on multiple phone calls researching grant funding streams for any future work.

Later in the meeting, Ryan Deuel thanked the board for their efforts and praised the quick turnaround on the resolution to send out the RFQ.

"I did want to voice the Coalition's support of this resolution that is on the agenda for tonight that would release the RFQ for a storm water management infrastructure engineering study," Deuel said. "That is really excellent news to hear so quickly on the agenda just days after we held our meeting back on the 28th."

Deuel said the Coalition will continue to work to promote a "multi-jurisdictional approach to the flooding issues, seeking to bring town, village, school and other stakeholders into the conversation to fix the problem."

MURDER....

No conclusive results suggested Wing used any knives at the residence during the course of the homicide.

Durham autopsy

After completing his work at Freddie Wing's residence around 12:30 p.m. or so, Haley said he made his way to Canton-Potsdam Hospital where Ronald Durham's autopsy was being conducted.

Haley said the autopsy took "multiple hours," which Dr. Scott Lapoint also testified to on the first day of the trial on Oct. 22.

Haley identified multiple State Police Investigators who were in attendance and brought a camera to document the process.

After completing the autopsy, Haley said he took multiple articles of clothing, boots, knives and other personal belongings to SP Massena for safekeeping before they could be transported to Ray Brook for further testing.

He said a number of swabs were also used and a vial of blood was drawn as well.

"Why did you take a vial of blood?" Barrett asked.

"It's standard practice to do a blood draw, at least two vials, for testing after a suspicious death," Haley said.

"So, why did you only have one vial then?" Barrett asked.

"Because there was significant blood loss. There wasn't much blood left," Haley said.

Durham cell phone found

Haley said his work on the Durham case did not finish at the time of his Feb. 12 autopsy.

On Feb. 15, Haley said he received a call from his superior once again to report to Gouverneur to collect a cell phone that was believed to have been evidence in Durham's case.

Haley said he was responsible for processing the phone, including dusting the phone for prints, however no fingerprints were deemed identifiable, he said.

He said he also took a swab of what was believed to be blood between the phone and the case. That swab was also submitted into evidence by Pasqua.

The phone was later taken to the FIU team in Ray Brook, where Haley said he and other investigators carried out a detailed investigation of the phone's contents.

Not just garbage

Police were issued a search warrant on March 9 to search Smith's truck, at which time Haley said he began his investigation.

As was shown in multiple photos in court, Haley documented multiple spots in Smith's truck that he said he believed to be blood. All spots were swabbed and submitted to the Albany crime lab for testing.

But things took a turn when Haley and investigators began to open the three garbage bags contained in Smith's truck.

Originally thought to just be garbage by Cortland City Patrolman Austin Fisk, the bags had been left in the bed of Smith's truck until Haley and State Police took possession of the vehicle on March 8.

Haley said when he and investigators opened the three bags they found multiple spots that they believed to be blood, along with seat covers and red and black gloves that also appeared to have blood on them.

Upon opening the second bag, Haley said he found a wallet with a photo, one dollar and two dollar bills. Marilyn Durham had testified that her father only ever used his wallet for his ID cards, photos and "just two dollar bills."

The wallet, which also appeared to have blood on it, contained a photo with writing on the back that said "To Huck."

Money bands for $1,000 were also found in the bag as well, Haley said. In the other black bag were even more money bands, many of which were for $1,000, along with a black bandana believed to have blood on it, along with a Brisk bottle that also appeared to have blood on it.

As investigators went through the contents, Haley said they found a black and green handled Gerber fixed blade knife.

Photos shown in court show the knife blade was clean but the handle had blood on it. As well, Haley said he found two check books in the bag, both of which had Ronald Durham's name and address on the checks. Both were covered in blood based on photos shown in court.

"Bloody bills"

Former Sandy Creek Dollar General store manager Patricia Lee took the stand Oct. 29 to detail her encounter with Smith on Feb. 11.

According to Lee, Smith came to the store around 1 p.m. and purchased two Apple Pay cards with $500 cash, all $100 bills.

She said when he handed her the cash, there appeared to be blood on each bill "about an inch wide or so."

Lee said Smith purchased the cards at 1:02 p.m., as was shown on security footage from the store, along with a receipt of the transaction that was presented in court.

Just five minutes later, Smith was seen on the footage again. This time he purchased a USB charger and Steam card for $100.

Upon entering a second time, Lee said Smith apologized for his previous behavior when "he appeared agitated" because she was not immediately available to cash him out.

"He said he was having a bad day because his uncle was just murdered," she commented.

She said Smith again paid with a $100 bill with the same distinct red stain that she believed to be blood.

Week one wrap up

The introduction of evidence police say is crucial to the case comes one week after a contentious start to the trial.

Opening statements proved to be problematic, with Pasqua objecting on multiple occasions to statements made by Barrett.

Just two days later, Barrett made a motion for a mistrial due to the introduction of evidence by the District Attorney's Office that he claimed was to be suppressed based on rulings in pre-trial hearings.

That motion was eventually overruled, though Pasqua was forced to show dash camera footage of Smith's traffic stop in Cortland without any audio. Barrett had argued that the footage and audio should have been inadmissible in court but jurors were able to view the footage. Multiple witnesses were also called to the stand, including friends and family members of Durham, all of whom testified that Durham was a friendly but frail old man who had many friends.

Goldenrod is framed during allergy season

BY PAUL HETZLER

Please don't blame late-season allergies on goldenrod. Well, not unless you've discovered bees going up your nose lately. It turns out that pollen from goldenrod, which is in glorious bloom throughout the region right now, is too heavy to waft on the wind. These plants rely on bees and other pollinators to convey their sticky pollen grains from one flower to another, which is why goldenrods don't cause hay fever, even if they wanted to.

While most plants respond to the longer nights of late summer by winding down their business for the season, goldenrod is a "short-day" plant. It actually needs dwindling daylight to remind it to bloom. A perennial in the aster family, it is widespread across North America. And diverse as well: continent-wide, we have something like 130 species of goldenrod in the genus Solidago. They transplant easily, and add a splash of color to the landscape when other plants are fading away. Goldenrods tend to spread out, however, and will need some discipline from time to time.

As one of the most plentiful posies of late summer and early fall, this native wildflower is a vital source of nectar and pollen for myriad bee species. Sadly, goldenrod's showy yellow blooms are in full view along roadsides and in meadows and pastures at the same time that an intense wave of seasonal hay fever typically begins. This "wrong place, wrong time" coincidence has given it a black eye (though not a black-eyed Susan) among allergy sufferers.

It's understandable that goldenrod has been blamed for the red itchy eyes, sinus congestion, sneezing, and general histamine-soaked misery that many folks experience this time of year. But goldenrod can't be guilty because its pollen weighs too much. That's a relative statement, I suppose, since it's light enough for bees to cart away loads of it. But compared to other kinds of pollen, it's downright chunky. It isn't that goldenrod pollen is not capable of eliciting an allergic response; it's just that to do so, something – a bee, for instance – would have to deliver it to your nasal passages.

The Meandering Naturalist

So, who is really to blame for the spike in late-summer allergies? The culprit is goldenrod's evil cousin, ragweed. Like goldenrod, ragweed is also a native plant in the aster family, although beyond that, it's not at all like its golden kin. The pollen that flies on the breeze and makes you sneeze, the stuff that stuffs you up – is courtesy of ragweed. Unattractive and ill-mannered, ragweed is like that obnoxious uncle you don't want sitting next to you at Thanksgiving dinner.

Sadly, you can't sit far enough away from ragweed. Its pollen is so wispy, it stays airborne for days on end until a rain event wipes the slate clean for a while. In fact, clouds of it have been detected in the air as far as 400 miles out to sea. And ragweed churns out this talcum-fine pollen like there's no tomorrow: a single plant will make more than a billion individual grains. When a tall, beefy ragweed plant sheds pollen, it can seem like someone just shook out an invisible vacuum-cleaner bag; it's that thick.

One reason we don't accuse ragweed of inflaming our nasal mucosa is that its flowers look nothing like

The energy transition - EV spotting

One way to keep up with the energy transition is via EV spotting. Like bird watching it has a game-like quality. Also, like birds, some EVs are as common as robins while others are still relatively rare. Though EVs are still a relatively small percentage of cars on the road there are enough now that you likely pass at least one, and often more, whenever out and about. Recently I saw a Cadillac Lyric and a Lucid on the same day. Quite a spot. The Cadillac is expanding its numbers while the Lucid is a rare breed flirting with extinction in what is becoming an increasingly competitive environment. Lucid does have financial backers with pretty deep pockets so they just might make it.

The rarest EV I have ever spotted is a Vinfast. Made by a Vietnamese company that has only recently entered the US they are now the number one car company in Vietnam and expanding rapidly overseas. With recent plans to open a plant in North Carolina delayed time will tell if they are able to adapt to our market.

New EVs and new car companies abound in the EV world giving ample opportunity to add to your EV life list. Tesla is of course the best known, very common and proper posies. They are a dull, drab green, blending in perfectly with the rest of the plant. It's as if ragweed makes a point of flying under our radar so that its eye-catching but inoffensive cousin the goldenrod will take the rap for its misdeeds.

The reason ragweed flowers are so generic and easy to overlook is because they're wind-pollinated. They don't need to advertise themselves with bright colors, sweet smells, and sugary nectar. Insect-pollinated plants have to bribe bees, butterflies and other pollen-couriers with flashy hues and bon-bons. It's a very efficient scheme, but takes a lot of energy.

Wind-pollinated plants figured out they don't have to do anything to attract the wind, so they kick back and avoid the expense of putting on a show. The downside is that the wind is not good at getting pollen to the exact right place. Since nearly all ragweed pollen goes where it shouldn't, including up our noses, ragweed plants need to make tons more of it.

Most ragweed species – there are about 50 of them – are annual self-seeders. That means they die each fall, but new plants sprout in the spring from the copious seeds produced each fall. Ragweed will continue to crank out allergens until the first hard frost, so let's hope we don't have an exceptionally long season this year.

Please help spread the word that goldenrod rules, and spare it false accusations.

If you ever do find bees in your schnozz, I urge you to seek medical – or maybe entomological – help right away.

Paul Hetzler writes about nature for The Saturday Evening Post, and is careful not to snort bees. His three books of nature essays can be found on Amazon.

distinctive making identification relatively easy. Many EVs look almost identical to their gasoline cousins. Fords F150 Lightning, GM's Silverado, Equinox and Blazer are virtually indistinguishable from the gas versions, at least to my eye, making spotting a bit more difficult.

One of the main clues to EV identification is the lack of a front grill. EVs don't require cooling like a gas car. Consequently, there is no open grill. Lack of a tailpipe and associated exhaust plume is another clue.

EVs tend to have distinctive sounds, or songs, if you will. Due to their inherent quietness a variety of sounds have been introduced so pedestrians can hear them at slow speeds. Anyone attuned to the sound of a particular EV can likely identify it without visual confirmation.

If you are looking to get in the spotting game one of the best habitats is a charging station. If you want to learn more, many EV owners are happy to talk about their cars. You just might find your next ride.

The tame deer of Green Pond

As this Fall's hunting season is soon to begin.... I'm hoping that this letter can be published in both your electronic and print media.... Thanks for caring!

QUOTE: THe Deer.... THe Deer.... THe TAme Deer

The Deer.... The Deer... THey are Wild Deer no more... Living in close proximity to Nature-Loving Humans has tamed them.

The Deer of Colton's Green Pond have become 4-Legged Neighbors to my Brother Don and me... As another all-too-brief North Country Summer comes to an end... Are The TAme Deer of Green Pond soon to lose their lives to hunters? So tame... Hunting? Or shooting tame Animals in a barnyard?

I grew up Deer hunting with my Father here in Wild Nature's NW Adirondacks... I've lived on the meat of Wild Beaver in remote roadless places where there are no grocery stores for hundreds of miles... I've been an outdoorsman.... Deer hunter... Trout fisherman... Photographer... Nature writer and activist

As Colton's population has grown, the residents... Both human and wild are coming into closer and closer contact.... Deer which once fled on first sight now stand gazing curiously at us... Wide-eyed and fearless

My point is that as times change we humans have choices about how we respond to changing times.... I have decided in my Heart to go door-to-door around Green Pond asking my neighbors the question "Don't THe TAme Deer of Green Pond deserve better from all of us than to lose their lives for trusting us?"

As a member of our newly-created environmental group... "Living Lightly on Earth"... I'm visiting my Neighbors in the spirit of living lightly... And inviting them to join us on our weekly conference call... 7 PM Sundays... Contact donaldhas-sig@gmail.com END QUOTE

MARKET . . .

"For us, this is an opportunity to encourage shopping local," Puleo said, "but also to provide a much-needed marketing and sales opportunity for small businesses that make handmade and value-added products, meaning all the vendors create their own goods. There are no resellers or direct sale vendors at this event."

Shoppers can now enjoy a full weekend experience, as this year's market will take place on Saturday and Sunday, a shift from previous years' Friday and Saturday format. "Our goal is to enhance community accessibility to the event and boost sales for our participating businesses," said Puleo. Shoppers are also encouraged to explore the local eateries in Downtown Potsdam, in addition to enjoying the offerings from Maxcy Hall's Concession Stand, which will be open throughout the market.

Admission to the market is $5 cash. Ages 12 and younger get in free.

The last hour of admission, on Sunday, December 8th, from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. will be free.

A complimentary shuttle will be available from parking lots surrounding Maxcy Hall at SUNY Potsdam.

The Chamber is actively seeking volunteers to help behind the scenes and is also seeking sponsors to help support event programming. To become a sponsor or to volunteer, call the STLC Chamber office at 315-386-4000!

Water buffalo raised in Hammond

Did you know there is a water buffalo farm in the north country? Water buffaloes have been raised in Venezuela for over a century, which is where Jose first came to know them as a boy. He and his partner Erin are passionate about these animals, marveling at their strength as a dual-purpose breed, valued for both fluid milk and meat. They chose to move to NYS, settling in Hammond earlier this spring. The resilient water buffaloes are grass fed, rotating through four pastures and making their own wallowing pits along the way. Rocking TT Bar sells their USDA processed cuts direct to consumers with future plans to develop the farm offerings. This photo is taken at Rocking TT Bar.

Community invitation to offer insight into food system

Three area organizations are collaborating to gain insight into the local food system, inviting the community to join them for a free roundtable discussion.

Cornell Cooperative Extension of St. Lawrence County, the Adirondack Food System Network and GardenShare are gathering first hand knowledge and experience about challenges and opportunities related to the food system, in an effort to build a shared understanding for collective action and intervention.

The roundtable will be held from 3-5pm on Thursday, November 14th at the Extension Learning Farm in Canton.

There is an optional tour of the farm before the roundtable from 2-3pm. Refreshments will be served. This roundtable is part of a series being held across northern

New York from mid-October to mid-December 2024.

This event is open to people working in the local food system in a variety of ways including farmers, grocers, business owners, food pantry operators, non-profits and more.

While the event is free and open to the public, RSVP is required for planning purposes.

Register for the roundtable at the Adirondack Food System Network page at www.adkfoodsystem.org/. Contact the Local Food Program Leader M. "Flip" Filippi with questions at (315) 379-9192, ext. 229 or mpf65@cornell.edu.

Growing farm-to-school purchasing and education through collaboration

BY M. FLIP FILIPPI

Local Foods Program Leader

Exciting activities are afoot with the Fresh-cut Farm-to-School Program, an initiative that buys tens of thousands of pounds of local vegetables and fruits and lightly processes them in the Harvest Kitchen.

Since 2018, this three way collaboration with St. Lawrence-Lewis BOCES, Cornell Cooperative Extension of St. Lawrence County, and Big Spoon Kitchen has supplied many north country school districts with delicious local produce for student lunches.

The partners have been proactive in seeking funding to expand the program and develop the food system in northern NY and was recently successful with two grant awards. The first includes $99,235 in funding from NYS Agriculture and Markets to Cornell Cooperative Extension of St. Lawrence County. The second proposal is $99,814 awarded to St. Lawrence-Lewis BOCES from the Patrick Leahy Farm to School Grant Program for a total project cost of $191,214.

The funding will support growing the Fresh-cut program from 65,000 pounds of finished product purchased by area districts in 2023-24 school year to over 100,000 pounds in 2024-2025. Additional activities include contracting with the Industrial Development Agency (IDA) for a comprehensive business analysis identifying areas of improvement and best equipment investments.

Moving healthy fruits and vegetables from local farm fields onto student lunch trays requires many steps and each partner has a unique role. The Harvest Kitchen at the Extension Learning Farm in Canton provides a commercial kitchen space to prepare the produce and store raw ingredients and finished product, while advising on process improvements. Big Spoon Kitchen facilitates the purchasing of produce from farmers, coordinates the deliveries to the Harvest Kitchen and prepares the fruits and vegetables into ready-to-use fresh ingredients including apple wedges, carrot coins, salsa mix, coleslaw mix, and diced butternut squash, plus frozen corn on the cob and green beans. These minimally processed foods simplify lunch preparation for school cafeterias. SLL BOCES manages the orders from schools and delivers to the districts each Monday, ensuring students' ability to enjoy farm fresh produce the entire school year.

chase of lightly processed produce is a cornerstone of the program's strength. Kudos to the food service directors and supportive cafeterias which includes orders from Brasher Falls, Canton, Clifton-Fine, Colton-Pierrepont, Edwards-Knox, Gouverneur, Hammond, Harrisville, Hermon-DeKalb, Heuvelton, Lisbon, Lyme, Madrid-Waddington, Morristown, Norwood-Norfolk, Ogdensburg, Potsdam, Sackets Harbor, and Watertown.

The success of the Fresh-Cut Farm to School Program is also built upon farmers and their high quality product. The program sources its fruits and vegetables from 13 local and regional farms. The most popular product is apple wedges. The apples come from Applewood Orchards in Rensselaer Falls, Canton Apples in Canton, Parishville Center Orchards in Parishville, Adirondack Growers in Malone, plus Forrence and Northern Orchards in Peru. Carrots and cabbage are supplied by Kent Family Growers in Lisbon. When carrots from St. Lawrence County become scarcer in the late winter, procurement stretches into central NY. Sweet corn is sourced from Phillips Agriculture in Heuvelton. Tomatoes, peppers, onions, and cabbage come from Martin's Farmstand in Potsdam and Mose Miller in Brasher Falls. Herschberger Farm provides butternut squash and this year has grown 20,000 pounds that will be processed 600 pounds at a time to deliver to school as peeled, diced cubes throughout the winter.

Director of School Food Service Artie Frego explains, "The Farm to School partnership between St. Lawrence-Lewis BOCES, Cornell Cooperative Extension, and Big Spoon Kitchen is a win-win for schools, farmers, and communities. By promoting healthy eating habits and supporting local agriculture, this partnership is helping to improve the well-being of students and the local community."

Co-owner and operator of Big Spoon Kitchen Will Trithart says, "Building up the farm to school program has been a rewarding and fun process for us at Big Spoon. It has helped our business develop relationships with new producers in the area and employ more people to work with local food. Special thanks to Joshua Martin who has been managing our Harvest Kitchen processing this year and to Flip Filippi for her tireless, patient and optimistic support for the program from day one."

Enhancements for the 2024-2025 school year include more Farm-to-School educational offerings such as hands-on lessons in classrooms, multi-stop food system field trips and most excitingly, a Spring 2025 revival of the Junior Iron Chef Competition where teams develop recipes and compete against one another.

Foraging 'tasting tour' held

Master Gardener Volunteers of St. Lawrence County found many treats on their foraging 'tasting tour' at the Extension Learning Farm on Halloween. Led by Pat Banker, a wild edible expert at Franklin County Extension, the group learned about historic uses of dandelion root, wild carrot, stinging nettles and more. The gardeners brought the results of their 'free-range shopping' inside to the Harvest Kitchen to make a meal of wild stir fry, roasted dandelion root tea and sunchoke fries.

Food Co-op raises $571 for Neighborhood Center at annual open house

POTSDAM -- The Potsdam Food Co-op hosted a successful Open House celebration on October 12-13th, 2024.

Through its annual open house, the Co-op welcomes all community members to the cooperatively owned grocery store for raffle prizes, free food samples, and a relaxed celebration of the fall season.

Vendors shared samples of food and drink, while shoppers enjoyed a 10% in-store discount on items ranging from sandwiches and local produce to supplements and healthy frozen foods.

Throughout the event, volunteers from the Deep Root Center helped children to decorate a small pumpkin of their own.

Sixty visitors also guessed the weight of a hefty pumpkin (33.4 lbs. to be exact), with one winner, Vanessa, taking home both the pumpkin and a Co-op gift card.

Mike Corse provided live acoustic music, and Co-op General Manager Jessie LaRose joined him for a couple of sets.

"This is a great event that brings our community together to eat delicious food, listen to local musicians, and celebrate cooperation," said LaRose.

The annual benefit raffle raised $571.

Donors purchased raffle tickets to bid on various prizes.

The prizes were all donated by Co-op vendors and included coffee for a year from St. Lawrence Valley Roasters, several gift baskets, freshly baked products, a $100 Co-op gift card, and more.

The Co-op thanked all of the donors who purchased raffle tickets and the many vendors who donated raffle prizes, said a press release from the organization.

The cooperative also said it appreciated the vendors who hosted a booth at the open house, including St. Lawrence Valley Roasters, Squeak Creek Apiaries, Cedar Hedge Farm, Hex & Hop Brewing, House of Greens, and Nourish Bakery.

All raffle proceeds went to the Potsdam Neighborhood Center, which assists community members in need of healthy food, clothing, utilities, shelter, and more. It is one of six centers operated by the St. Lawrence County Community Development Program, a private nonprofit agency.

During the open house, 18 people became new member-owners of the Potsdam Food Co-op.

Every new member won a small prize – from a chocolate bar to a Co-op gift card – to celebrate their joining the Co-op.

Board members of the Co-op were on site encouraging participation and enlightening community members on what it means to be a member-owner of the only Food Co-op in St Lawrence County.

Anyone can shop at the Potsdam Food Co-op for healthy, local, and organic food.

The store's offerings include fresh local produce and dairy; vegan foods and allergy-free foods; healthy frozen foods, grain free & gluten free options, prepared seasonings; supplements and wellness products; deli items and prepared sandwiches; and bulk grains, nuts, oil, herbs, spices, tea, and coffee.

Shoppers enrolled in SNAP can sign up for the Double Up Food Bucks NY program for up to a $20 match per day on fresh produce.

A customer can become a Co-op member-owner simply by purchasing a share, at a cost of $10 per year for ten years.

Member-owners get deep discounts on twice-monthly "Co-op Deals" sales and a 10% discount on Wellness products the second Wednesday of every month.

They can also receive special discounts through our online Buying Club.

If they choose, a member-owner can work a weekly or monthly shift to earn a regular discount on all in-store purchases.

The store is open to everyone at 24 Elm St. in Potsdam, seven days a week, from 8:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Sundays.

Nature's Storehouse's fundraiser for Bonus Bucks

CANTON – Nature's Storehouse

and GardenShare are inviting customers to support the Bonus Bucks Program during the Thanksgiving season. From Nov. 1 to 27, customers will be asked if they'd like to make a donation to GardenShare while checking out.

Joining Nature's Storehouse in this season of giving is a local anonymous donor who will contribute a match incentive of $500: for every dollar raised at checkout, they will donate a matching dollar. The Gratitude through Giving fundraiser supports GardenShare's Bonus Buck Program, which offers a cost-sharing arrangement to income eligible St. Lawrence County residents to participate in a Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) share or to purchase at St. Lawrence County farmers markets.

"Many people feel that healthy food is inaccessible. We are inspired by the work that GardenShare does to help ensure access to healthy food, and we are proud to partner with them in this fundraising effort," said Patti Mason, the general manager of Nature's Storehouse.

GardenShare works to promote a local food system that ensures food security for all St. Lawrence County residents. Learn more about their programs that support "Healthy Food, Healthy Farms, Everybody Eats" at www.GardenShare.org.

New album from Crane teacher

POTSDAM -- Dr. Young-Ah Tak, an associate professor of piano at SUNY Potsdam’s Crane School of Music, is set to release a new album of sonatas by Franz Schubert, on the Steinway & Sons label.

The recording will be released worldwide on Nov. 1, available for pre-saving on all download and streaming platforms, including Apple Music, Amazon Music, Spotify, Tidal and Deezer.

To launch the album, the internationally acclaimed pianist, herself a Steinway Artist, will perform in a Steinway Spirocast, live from Steinway Hall in New York City on Nov. 7, with subsequent airdates on Nov. 9, 21 and 28. Spirocast is an unrivaled, unfiltered audio and visual experience on the Steinway Spirio, the world’s finest high resolution player piano, accompanied by live video streaming.

“Recording for the Steinway label has been an amazing and very artistically inspiring experience -- everything was top-notch, the engineers and technicians were very supportive, and I was able to work with one of the most respected producers in the industry,” Tak said. “I’m very excited about the recording. I learned so much through studying and performing these profound and beautiful masterpieces.”

Tak’s new album features Schubert’s “Sonata in A-Minor, D-784,” and “Sonata in G-Major, D-894.” The album of Schubert’s Sonatas follows Tak’s acclaimed 2019 release of Beethoven Piano Sonatas on the Steinway & Sons label and features another composer who is very close to the pianist’s heart.

“I have been drawn towards the music of Franz Schubert for as long as I can remember. My first experience studying a Schubert sonata was at age 12, and from then on it has been an important part of my repertoire,” she said.

Local artists open studios to public during tour

St. Lawrence County artists opened their studios and work spaces to the public Saturday and will be doing it again Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The 37th annual artist's studio tour is sponsored by the St. Lawrence County Arts Council. The free tour gives the public an opportunity to explore the creative spaces of local artists and artisans, and witness the inspiration and techniques that drive their work.

Those who take the tour are invited to meet the artists, ask questions, and purchase one-of-a-kind pieces directly from the creators.
