More than 2,000 corrections officers fired, blacklisted from government jobs

North Country reps say governor's order is hypocritical

BY JIMMY LAWTON
North Country This Week

Gov. Kathy Hochul has issued an executive order that will bar more than 2,000 corrections officers who were fired for striking Tuesday from working in state or local government in the future.

In the order Hochul said the state is committed to ensuring individuals appointed to state service uphold the law and their oath to public office.

"Individuals participating in illegal strikes have willfully violated the Taylor Law and an order of the Supreme Court of the State of New York by engaging in misconduct that undermines the public trust, demonstrates disregard for the law, disrupts public services, and is inconsistent with suitability for public service roles," her order says.

According to the order the state will investigate to determine which officers were involved in the strikes and all state agencies will need to determine if any applicants for jobs were former officers and if they were involved in strikes as part of the background checks.

Weaver steps down from City Council due to residency requirement

BY JIMMY LAWTON
North Country This Week

OGDENSBURG -- Ogdensburg City Councilor Michael Weaver has resigned from city council.

Weaver's decision came as he will no longer be a city resident.

On Monday City Council accepted the resignation and set a special meeting for April 7 at 6 p.m. where they hope to fill the council.

Before that can happen the vacancy committee will solicit nominations for candidates willing to fill the role and present three potential candidates to council.

Mayor Michael Tooley offered kind words for Weaver, whom he said was a dedicated councilor.

Deputy Mayor Dan Skamperle said it was a pleasure working with Weaver and said he doesn't have to be a city councilor to stay active in the community.

Councilor Michael Powers noted that being a councilor can be a thankless job and said he appreciated his willingness to take on the challenge.

Councilors Jennifer Stevenson, Donna Trimm and Storm Cilley said they were sorry to see him leave.

Weaver has served on the city council since January of 2024. It was his first term.

Alcoa CEO says aluminum tariffs could cost jobs

As many as 100,000 jobs could be impacted if things go bad

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA -- Alcoa CEO Bill Oplinger has told media outlets that tariffs proposed by President Donald Trump on multiple occasions could cost the company 20,000 U.S. aluminum industry jobs, along with an additional 80,000 jobs in sectors that support it.

Oplinger made the comments in a webcast recently, noting the Pittsburgh-based Alcoa would be hit heavily if the tariffs did go into effect.

Though Trump proposed tariffs when he first entered office in January, tariffs have been delayed at the eleventh hour multiple times.

Most recently, Ontario Premier Doug Ford announced on March 11 the province would immediately implement a 25% tariff on all electric exports to the U.S.

That measure would have impacted 1.5 million Americans, including many in New York. In response, Trump issued a 50% tariff on all Canadian aluminum and steel imports.

But shortly thereafter both sides backed down, bringing the two countries back from the brink.

Trump has said on multiple occasions he would impose a flat 25% tariff on aluminum imports "without exceptions or exemptions" in a move that he said would bolster U.S. production of metals used to manufacture vehicles, cans and various other products.

Learn Ayurvedic gardening

Ayurveda, or the study of life, is an ancient Indian philosophy and medicine that provides a path to balancing mind, body, and spirit. On April 29, 10-11:30am, Master Gardener Volunteer Linda Moerschell will lead a class at the Extension Learning Farm in Canton about gardening with Ayurvedic principles in mind.

Even if you've never heard of Ayurveda, this class will be a fun opportunity to learn some of its teachings on food and health.

While not an expert, Linda has been interested in Ayurveda for decades and has recently delved deeper into it.

With 20 years of teaching experience in English and Communications, Linda is always eager to share what she's been learning in an approachable, accessible manner.

Although Ayurveda is a comprehensive practice that includes exercise, meditation, sleeping, breathing, and a full range of dietary topics, this presentation will focus on dietary principles applied specifically to vegetables and garden planning.

This presentation is not intended to offer religious or medical advice.

This presentation will start with a quiz to help participants identify which fundamental energies "or doshas" make up their constitution. According to Ayurveda, maintaining a proper balance between these doshas is crucial for health, and the foods we eat can create that balance.

Moerschell will cover which of these balancing foods can be grown successfully in the North Country. She will provide handouts that include food lists, sample garden plans, and companion planting information.

This class will be offered on a sliding scale from $10-40. Please pay what you can afford. To register, visit the Cornell Cooperative Extension website at stlawrence.cce.cornell.edu and click on the events tab. Contact Erica at ENL2@cornell.edu or 315-379-9192 x240 with questions about the class.

Facing murder charge in roommate death

CANTON -- An Ogdensburg man accused of killing his former roommate last April in Rensselaer Falls is facing a second-degree murder charge following an indictment Thursday, March 6, by a St. Lawrence County grand jury. John Free III, 51, who is currently an inmate at the St. Lawrence County Correctional Facility, was also indicted on first-degree manslaughter, first-degree assault, and third-degree grand larceny. County court documents report that between April 5 and April 12 Free caused the death of John Barr, 58, of Rensselaer Falls. Barr was found dead on May 16 and is alleged to have been struck in the head with blunt objects by Free. The grand larceny indictment stems from Free stealing property in excess of $3,000. Free is a former Ivy Ridge employee and before the body was discovered, he was interviewed about his time and actions as an employee at Ivy Ridge. WWNV-TV also interviewed him in an hour-long program. Free is being represented by attorney Bradford Rien-deau.

'Drones have become essential for bringing cattle into the barn during this winter's deep snow,' said David Zufall of Lisbon. 'The accumulation of snow has made it nearly impossible to bring the cows inside with a four-wheeler or side-by-side without getting stuck, even with a tractor's tire path. Since the last snowstorm, I've successfully been using a drone to guide the cows inside for the night, and it has worked remarkably well.'

Massena Central proposed budget would have no tax levy increase, officials say

Four buses included in current plan, foundation aid likely to increase

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA — When voters in the Massena Central School district head to the polls on May 20 they will likely see a budget with no tax levy increase, according to district officials.

District officials say the budget could have included a 4.27% increase under the property tax cap, however they opted against that with the budget as it currently sits.

Superintendent Ron Burke said the figure would be allowable under state law but noted the Finance Committee is “aiming for zero or as close to zero as we can possibly get.”

That figure will be aided by a proposed $1.98 million increase in foundation aid for the district, which would come to $37.8 million under Governor Kathy Hochul’s proposed budget.

That figure is based on a long established formula, officials said.

But aid increases wouldn’t stop there, as the district would also see a $255,228 increase for universal pre-kindergarten, $254,866 for Board of Cooperative Educational Services, $61,694 for private excess cost, $59 for hardware and technology, along with $300,548 for transportation.

While those figures would increase, other areas of aid would decrease, including $136,124 for high cost excess cost, $1,304 for software, library and textbooks, as well as $1.02 million for building aid.

Total aid would top out at $50.2 million, officials said.

But Burke reiterated that those figures are not set in stone as the state budget has yet to be passed.

“If you look at our building aid ratio, it looks like it’s decreasing by $1 million. I typically don’t get too worried about that because that means we’re paying off bonds or a project’s been completely paid. But, we know that wasn’t the case. In fact, that’s probably going to end up being a plus $1 million,” he said.

Burke said expenditures under the draft budget would increase by $2.3 million. That’s in contrast to using the current budget and “moving it forward with no changes,” he said.

“We’d be looking at a $986,000 increase, which is a 1.4% increase,” he said.

He said an additional component of the budget includes the strategic budget process, “which is where the administrative team gets together and we talk about what it is that we think we need or want additional for the next year.”

Burke said that figure sits at $1.3 million currently. He commented that the admin team worked hard to identify what was needed for the strategic budget process, noting there “was not a lot of fluff.”

“In fact, I would say there was almost no fluff. These are actual things that our admin team said we think we need, we think it would improve our program for next year,” he said.

That figure of $1.3 million is a significant cut from the original $4 million that was originally proposed, something Burke said the team work to cut and realistically “identify the needs and wants.”

Burke said the work isn’t complete, however, as the figures as still preliminary and more work will continue with the Finance Committee in the coming weeks.

He said the budget has increased, in part, due to inflation and “little things” like add ons for buses that are being purchased.

Burke said the district is proposing four full-sized diesel buses, getting them in before the state electric bus mandate hits.

But those buses will cost $183,664 each, coming to $720,657 after trade-ins.

He said the district would use reserve funds to purchase the buses, avoiding bonds.

The outright purchase was driven up in price slightly as the district opts for add-ons like white painted tops.

Burke said that move would drop the internal temperate of the buses “by up to 10 degrees,” making the buses far more comfortable for students to ride on.

Other add-ons include controls on steering wheels, affording drivers easier access to them and enabling them to “maintain visibility of the road.”

Grab bars and luggage racks underneath are also included with the buses, primarily for use for sports trips.

“Any time we take a sports trip, the rule is all sports equipment needs to be housed somewhere other than the passenger compartment. The last eight buses that we have purchased did not have those. So, I’m getting a little bit nervous that we’re going to be running a fleet without the necessary safety equipment to get our student athletes where they need to go. All four buses will have that,” Burke said.

A budget forum will be held on March 20 during the board of education meeting, with a required budget hearing slated for May 8, 12 days before voters head to the polls.

Hearings will be held in the high school auditorium, while voters will cast their ballots at the Massena Community Center on Beach Street.

‘Adopt a Senior’ at Massena in full swing

Baskets to be gifted between March 24 and April 4

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA -- Community members can adopt a senior from the class of 2025, a tradition that began with the class of 2020 who were unable to have a normal school experience due to the pandemic.

School officials say the “Adopt a Senior” program will provide gift baskets filled with each student’s favorite items as a way to recognize the senior for their accomplishments.

Baskets will be delivered between March 24 and April 4, officials said.

The program is one of the first steps in recognizing students before their planned June 27 graduation. The event will take place at 8:30 p.m., however a rain date has been set for June 28, if necessary.

A reception is also planned for sometime in May or June, which will include a LifeTrack survey for outgoing students.

The survey is intended to track students’ progress as they prepare to enter college or the workforce, with surveys conducted prior to graduation, 18 months after graduation and five years after graduation, according to a board resolution.

The survey is currently open for outgoing seniors, with an expected completion date of April 1, according to board of education members.

“As far as some of these other parts of this goal, we haven’t really had a lot of time put in on this, but we do have a plan,” Board president Paul Haggett said.

Those interested in adopting a senior should email mtrimboli@mcs.k12.ny.us.

Bill would require drug testing and shooting course

Bronx rep wants hunting licenses, mental health testing to buy guns

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

An Assembly bill sitting in committee on codes would require any purchaser of a firearm to first obtain a hunting license and a mental health evaluation, among other restrictions.

Assembly bill A360 adds new regulations “related to establishing additional requirements to purchase a firearm, shotgun or rifle,” according to the bill sponsored by District 79 Democrat Chantel Jackson.

The Harlem native represents Concourse Village, Melrose, Morrisania, Claremont, Belmont, and East Tremont in the Bronx.

The legislation, which was previously introduced during the 2019-20, 2021-22 and 2023-24 legislative sessions in various forms, would almost certainly draw lawsuits from gun rights organizations like Gun Owners of America and Firearms

Policy Coalition, as many previous laws have since the landmark Bruen decision from the Supreme Court.

That case, NYSRPA v. Bruen, largely undid New York State’s 109-year-old concealed carry laws and redefined how gun cases should be ruled upon.

Jackson’s bill includes a myriad of requirements to purchase a firearm, including a five-hour gun safety course and exam, passing a shooting range test with 90% accuracy, providing notarized proof of a passed drug test, a mental health evaluation, providing proof of purchase of firearm and ammunition safe storage depositories and passing a criminal background check, according to the bill.

Mental health issues that would disqualify an applicant include those who have had a guardian appointed for them pursuant to any provisions of state law based on the determination of “subnormal intelligence, mental illness, incompetency, incapacity, condition or disease, [he or she lacks] THEY LACK the mental capacity to contract or manage [his or her] THEIR own affairs,” the bills states. Applicants must also submit to an investigation with law enforcement, including fingerprinting, to access records through the Office of the Department of Mental Hygiene to ensure no previous or present mental health conditions are present and would disqualify the applicant prior to a psychological examination, the bill states.

Purchases must also pass a shooting exam with 90% accuracy “using the type of firearm they anticipate purchasing, possessing or acquiring.” Critics have already called the measure “foolish” online, noting that first time purchasers are placed at a distinct disadvantage with the testing requirements due to a lack of experience.

Another major point of contention among hunters is language that would require those purchasing a hunting license to now provide proof they are not an “unlawful user of or addicted to any controlled substance as defined in section 21 U.S.C 802 and has notarized proof of a passed drug test by a licensed physician.

Those requirements would continue to build upon Environmental Conservation Law that requires hunting license purchasers to obtain a certificate of completion through a Hunter’s Safety course.

Exemptions would be put in place for law enforcement officers, as well as veterans honorably discharged from the military who have proof of official qualifications in similar firearms during the term of their service, the bill states.

The legislation would build off of the Concealed Carry Improvement Act, which implemented a number of restrictions to purchase firearms, including an 18-hour course to obtain a concealed carry license, as well as a requirement to obtain a pistol permit to purchase a semi-automatic rifle.

The CCLIA is currently enduring significant scrutiny by Gun Owners of America with the Antonyuk v. James, with the Supreme Court accepting multiple amicus briefs related to the case before docketing.

St. Lawrence County Attorney Steve Button, who has been working “of counsel” with Gun Owners of America since Oct. 2022 previously told North Country This Week he and attorney from GOA are confident in the merits of the case and appear hopeful the Supreme Court will take up the case this fall.

Outpouring of interest ‘very exciting to see’

Massena sport fishing promoter says sports shows huge draw for tourists

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA — Sport fishing continues to be a big tourism draw to the North Country, especially in Massena where multiple professional tournaments have been held for the last few years.

Sport fishing director Don Meissner said the outpouring of support has “just been wonderful,” noting that the numerous sports shows he and grant writer Linda McQuinn attend continue to raise the bar.

“We meet so many people and have so many new faces coming to these shows, seeking us out to see what it is all about,” he said.

Meissner told North Country This Week that the shows he and McQuinn have attended since the fishing season wrapped up in 2024 “have been spectacular.”

“They’ve been better than we expected, which says a lot. There has been so much interest in Massena and what it has to offer,” he said.

Meissner commented that anglers and tourists alike continue to ask about the sights they can see when they visit, locations to stay and businesses they should visit.

He and McQuinn take numerous materials to promote the area and businesses, usually coming home empty handed.

“We have handed out hundreds of fliers, visitors guides, promotion products and materials. We rarely have anything left,” he said.

Meissner said the first show of the season, held in Marlborough, Massachusetts, was a home run.

Now with two shows left, he said the final push is on to bring awareness to Massena.

“We have been working closely with a number of businesses in this town to help us for a presentation for people that are going to these sports shows, to understand what they have,” Meissner said.

He said working with PBS has also been a huge boost to efforts, with numerous videos shot over the last few months to promote tourist attractions such as the Nicaudri Nature Center and St. Lawrence Seaway Visitor Center.

“Those videos are a big hit, we’re very excited for everyone to see them,” he said.

He also praised efforts by Highway Superintendent Dylan Casselman who he said has been a huge help in coming up with new ideas to attract more people to Massena.

Part of that plan involves Boutique Air, the Essential Air Service Provider operating at the Massena International Airport.

Meissner said officials with Boutique have sent numerous items for the sporting shows and tournaments. With air service playing a big role, Meissner said it opens up Massena to a whole new audience.

“At the last sports show we had a number of people, I can’t tell you the number, but more than a handful of people that came in and they said, ‘Oh, we had no idea you had an airport. If we could fly there in an hour and fly back,’” Meissner said.

Boutique has provided bags for shows, along with special travel rates for flights between Boston Logan Airport and Massena, a move that has increased fliers and attendance at shows, Meissner said.

Meissner said the collaboration with Boutique has been “a real highlight of the show,” leading other, local businesses to begin advertising and sending materials.

He said in the end the goal is to drive as many people to the booth as possible, allowing he and McQuinn to speak with potential tourists who may come to the area.

“Once they come into the booth, they have a million questions and that’s really encouraging to see. There is a big interest in the North Country and Massena in particular. We have, I think, the best smallmouth bass fishery in the world and word is getting out,” he said.

Vaping continues to be problem at school

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA -- Vaping is a continuing problem at Massena Central School, something officials appear poised to tackle in the next capital project.

According to student ex-officio Isabel Beard, who is a student liaison to the board of education, students have raised concerns regarding vaping in bathrooms with more than one toilet.

She said vaping has been a consistent issue in larger bathrooms, leading some students to feel they appear associated with vaping despite not participating.

Board member Robert LeBlanc posed the question to Beard following her report to the board, asking for her input.

LeBlanc said he was aware of the ongoing issue and as the chair of the district’s Facilities Committee was seeking solutions.

“When I asked Isabel for more details about the problematic corner bathrooms, I knew about the problems. I just wanted to know what she was feeling about it and just make sure that there’s no confusion because we know about the problem,” he said.

School officials, including Superintendent Ron Burke, addressed the concerns students have raised regarding the corner bathrooms referred to as “gang-style” bathrooms due to having more than one toilet.

““What we’re hearing from our students, as Isabel said, is because there’s so much vaping that goes on, there’s guilt by association. Especially if you’re a student athlete, that becomes a real major issue,” Burke said.

He said the concern extends to the entire student body, with many with a clean record saying they do not want to appear that they are vaping simply for using a bathroom where someone may be.

Burke said district officials hope to convert one boy’s and one girl’s bathroom into individualized restrooms, as opposed to the gang-style bathrooms, in order to provide more options for students.

He said that project would likely be part of the next capital project, which voters will see on May 20.

As for the next capital project, Burke said the price tag currently sits at $79.9 million, with the district expected to receive building aid to cover 97% of the project.

“ I always want to put that caution out, though, that just because we have a 97% building aid ratio, that doesn’t mean that’s what we’re actually going to get. There will be certain aspects of the project that are not going to be aidable,” Burke said.

The project would require the district to utilize $7 million from the capital reserve fund, something that would ensure no impact to taxpayers, he said.

The projects included would cover HVAC repairs and replacements for boilers, along with a steam pipe running to the high school, as well as new cooling units in certain areas of each school, roof replacements, ceiling replacements, new lighting, exterior toilets near grass athletic fields, as well as renovations to the girl’s locker room and pool renovations.

Rally to stop cuts in federal programs will be held Mar. 15 at O’burg City Hall OGDENSBURG — Rallies to stop cuts in Medicaid, housing, food assistance and other federal programs will be held Saturday, March 15, from noon- 2 p.m. at Rep. Elise Stefanik’s North Country offices.

In Ogdensburg, the rally will be at City Hall. A simultaneous rally is planned in Plattsburgh.

The events are organized by the North Country Neighbors for Civic Engagement, North Country NY Indivisible, and Adirondack Voters for Change.

“Right-wing politicians in Washington are moving forward with devastating proposals to cut trillions in Medicaid, housing, food assistance and other vital programs so that America’s wealthy Oligarch billionaires will not have to pay taxes,” the organizations said in a statement.

“Unelected billionaires have been given free rein to shut down services and force layoffs in order to use our tax money for their own ends.”

Supporters are asked to bring family and friends, along with a sign. For more info or to register, visit www.mobilize.us/northcountryindivisibleNY/event/760904

Grant awarded to restore Old Town Hall

WADDINGTON – The Town Board of Waddington has been awarded a grant for more than $5,500 for restoration of the Old Town Hall.

The Northern New York Community Foundation will make $5,680 available to the town from the Rock Charitable Fund to assist the town in commissioning Crawford and Stearns, Architects and Preservation Planners, Syracuse New York, to conduct an analysis and review of the Old Town Hall in Waddington and prepare a

Building Conditions Assessment and w
Report outlining their findings. town

The Old Town Hall in Waddington was erected in 1884 and is an important local landmark of recognized architectural and historical significance and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. This assessment report will focus on highlighting concerns related to the toll that time and severe north country winters have taken on the exterior stone, masonry, wooden windows, and wooden trim of the building. The town then intends to use this report as supporting documentation for pursuing future grant applications that will hopefully assist the town in funding repairs to the building to restore it to its original glory.

Maintenance and preservation of places of legitimate historical significance in St. Lawrence County is a primary focus area of the Rock Charitable Fund of the Northern New York Community Foundation.

Firings in Washington
a tragedy

I have little tolerance for waste, and less for fraudulent activities in the workplace. Today we are faced with a President and his DOGE “special government employee,” Elon Musk, who claims they are committed to reducing waste and fraud in government agencies.

The problems with their processes are multi-faceted, but the worst by far is that they have attacked agencies designed to protect the public with sweeping firings - whether or not there is any evidence of waste, fraud, or any wrongdoing on the parts of the employees losing their jobs.

Tens of thousands of workers have been fired without cause. People who rely on their jobs, like most of us, are now unemployed even though there have never been any complaints about their work, and many have exemplary records. They are sometimes probationary workers trying to advance their careers, and others who have served for decades.

They were completely blindsided. Many of the firings are illegal and will cost us millions in litigation for years to come.

Here is the real tragedy. These blanket firings will affect nearly every American negatively at some point. We have lost people who protect us from consumer fraud, dangerous products, and bank scams in the CFPB. Farmers will suffer from cuts to the Department of Agriculture that includes farm loan officers, economists and food scientists working on halting bird flu. Half of the people fired from the Dept. of Energy worked the grid for western American states. While some have been recalled, tens of thousands of HHS workers, who test medical devices, research to prevent epidemics and keep our food and drugs safe, were fired.

They recently fired workers from NOAA, which predicts catastrophic weather events for communities across the nation.

They have fired VA workers; many of them are veterans. DOT workers who keep our road, water and air travel safe. Aid workers who provide sustenance to countries suffering starvation, terrorism and disease.

Housing, Homeland Security, and the DOJ. National Parks. Education. Transportation. Are we winning yet?

Every citizen will eventually feel the pain of these firings; some in small ways, but others in life-changing ways. We count on these agencies to protect us. If there are problems, investigate and respond appropriately. Call your reps today and urge them to stop this travesty before it's too late.

DO YOU SUPPORT the strike by corrections officers?

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION: Probation officers are already allowed to utilize body armor and pepper spray but the ability to carry handguns is a recent development that county officials have said is necessary given the ever evolving landscape of law enforcement and probations. Do you support the decision to allow St. Lawrence County probation officers to carry handguns for self-defense purposes?

HOCHUL...

“No New York State agency shall hire or appoint any individual who was previously employed by the Department of Corrections and Community Supervision and thereafter separated from such employment in connection with such individuals participation with the illegal and unlawful strike,”the order says.

She further states that the prohibition includes state positions and any civil service positions.

In addition, Hochul is barring local governments from appointing, transferring or promoting any individuals involved in the strike and suspending home rule legislations from stopping local governments from making their own determinations regarding hiring former officers who participated in the strikes.

Assemblyman Scott Gray said the executive order was “an egregious suspension of civil service laws and municipal home rule,” a measure that undermines “long-standing legal protections for public employees.”

“The executive order is in stark contrast to the Clean Slate legislation that allows criminal records to be sealed in order for convicted felons to gain employment—how is that for contrast!” he wrote.

Senator Mark Walczyk also called out the governor for the disaster emergency executive order, saying she is punishing officers for standing up against failed policies.

“Madam Governor, practice what you preach! Who is fighting for our correction officers’ families? Your actions are fighting against them, making it nearly impossible for these brave individuals to provide for their families you swore to fight for. Depriving correctional officers of job opportunities and stripping their families of health insurance is the exact opposite of your promise,” Walczyk said.

The harsh order followed news from a press conference Monday evening, where DOCCS Commissioner Daniel F. Martuscello said the state would uphold several aspects of an agreement hashed out with the union on March 6, despite a failure to meet the 85% “return to work” threshold.

“After 22 days of an illegal strike, the governor and I are happy to report, it has now ended,” he said.

“Officers and sergeants who did not have pre approved medical leave and did not return by this morning’s 6:45 a.m. deadline have been terminated effective immediately,” he said.

Hoping to limit the fallout and ensure safe staffing numbers could be met, Assemblyman Scott Gray issued a letter to Martuscello asking him for a 48-hour extension for officers to return to work, but that appears to have fallen on deaf ears.

Although there will be no disciplinary actions from DOCCS or the Union, penalties for violating the Taylor Law will remain in place, he said.

Despite firing more than 2,000, Martuscello told corrections officers they’ve been heard, but corrections officers who spoke to North Country This Week, who are now off work are unconvinced.

The strikes began three weeks ago on the heels of reports that several corrections officers were exposed to fentanyl and had to be treated with Narcan. Not long after corrections officers began to call for safer working conditions and a repeal of the HALT act, which limits the use of segregated confinement.

Corrections officers said the HALT act has created a dangerous environment for them and inmates alike.

Over the past three weeks several officers were hashed out between the union and state, but because the strike was not sanctioned by the union, NYSCOPBA failed to deliver on its end of the signed agreements several times.

In the latest agreement the state offered a financial incentive for those who returned to work Sunday and allowed a Monday deadline without the extra incentive.

The deal included a 90 day hold on the rehabilitative programming required for inmates by the HALT Act, and allows for additional inmate segregation when staffing levels are low.

The deal also includes a reversal of a policy that would have made 70% staffing levels the new 100% and include better inspections and screenings for mail and the use of body scanners on anyone who enters the facility.

A major sticking point in the negotiations appeared to center around health care.

Under the deal those who returned to work allowed officers to pay for COBRA health care to compensate for the lack of coverage that occurred when the state stripped striking officers of their healthcare benefits.

The state said it intended to follow through on those initiatives despite failing to meet the threshold, but offered no room for resolution for the more than 2,000 corrections officers who did not return to work.

Martuscello said that termination letters were already issued and that the campaign to hire corrections officers would begin soon.

In the meantime, he said National Guard members will continue to supplement the workforce.

In return the union agreed to withdraw a lawsuit it initiated regarding healthcare benefits.

Those striking over the past few weeks have seen a huge outpouring of community support with local restaurants providing food to the picketers.

The strikes have caused a major disruption in the prison system and led to the deployment of the National Guard to supplement understaffed prisons.

During the strikes there were multiple prisons that lost control of inmates which led to the deployments of Corrections Emergency Response Teams to secure the facilities.

ALCOA...

But Alcoa officials are not as optimistic, saying the tariffs would have a significant impact on American jobs.

“This is bad for the aluminum industry in the U.S. It’s bad for American workers,” Oplinger said.

Oplinger also said the tariffs would be enough to spur U.S. firms to hire more workers and boost production, something Oplinger said would not drive the company to produce more aluminum.

Oplinger said the tariffs alone would not be enough to tempt Alcoa into restarting some of its shuttered U.S. facilities.

“It’s very hard to make an investment decision, even on something like a restart, without knowing how long the tariffs will last,” Oplinger said during the webcast.

Part of the concern stems from downstream jobs, also called indirect jobs, and the impact tariffs could have.

For every Canadian aluminum production job impact, 13 American indirect jobs could be impacted, officials said.

That would mean significant economic consequences in the U.S.

Alcoa officials said they are making “real time decisions based on the information available,” commenting the “deeply integrated supply chain from Canada into the United States” is a top concern at the moment.

The cost to tool up and produce more aluminum is also an issue, Alcoa officials said.

Alcoa officials said any tariffs would have “an immediate impact on pricing and supply,” in turn affecting costs for consumers.

In the case of aluminum goods, like soda cans, those costs would be passed directly to the customer.

Alcoa officials have signaled support for supporting and growing manufacturing domestically, just not at the expense of the consumer.

Alcoa in particular have said they hope to continue to support growth efforts, bringing more good paying manufacturing jobs to the U.S.

But to make a large investment that would be billions of dollars while not seeing a return on investment for 10 to 15 years is difficult.

Alcoa officials have said it was their belief that competitively priced energy is the way to foster growth, including job creation.

In many cases, such operations have been established in areas with the most affordable power available given the creation of primary aluminum is a very energy intensive business, Alcoa officials said.

One bright spot to come from the bleak webcast was that Alcoa would consider boosting U.S. output if it had a cheap supply of power, something Massena has in spades.

Alcoa currently operates a plant in Massena, the oldest continually operating smelter in the world.

“Built in 1902, Massena Operations has a rich history of dedicated employees producing high-quality aluminum for the transportation, construction, defense and food industries. The plant has provided for families, served as a strategic partner to defense and aerospace industries and helped humankind explore the surface of the moon,” Alcoa said on their website.

Another key issue hitting the sector right now is a supply issue, with primary aluminum in short supply for the current demand.

Alcoa officials have said replacement materials will play a key role in that, noting the demand curve has shown that a gap in the market exists. Companies from Europe, the Middle East, Asia and Canada as well typically fill that void, however tariffs could greatly impact that supply.

An economic impact study conducted prior to the 120th anniversary of the facility showed that the site’s approximately 450 employees make a significant impact statewide in New York, with direct, indirect and induced effects contributing to more than $150 million in payroll earnings, according to Alcoa.

But with the threat of tariffs looming and talk of lost jobs coming to the forefront, many are left to wonder what facilities would be impacted first.

According to documents obtained by North Country This Week, St. Lawrence County exports $267 million in goods to Canada annually, $75 million of which is aluminum. That represents the largest share of exports, followed closely by nonferrous metal products, which represents $64 million.

Iron, steel and ferroalloys make up $49 million, while metal ores account for $24 million and pulp, paperboard and mill products round out the top-5 with $16 million.

St. Lawrence County also exports $35 million in services to Canada annually, with transport making up $20 million.

As for goods exports by industry, minerals and metals account for $221 million total, or 83% of all exports from the county.

Those figures have steadily risen since 2017, when total exports came in at $170, eventually rising to $301 million in 2022.

A total of 700 individuals are employed at the 19 Canadian-owned businesses operating in St. Lawrence County, with an additional 1,450 jobs that depend on goods and services exports to Canada.

Among the top Canadian-owned businesses operating in St. Lawrence County include Braebon Medical Corporation, Brookfield Properties, Canarm Ltd., Hewitt Environmental, JSI Telecom, Jmpower Aggregates, Liberty Utilities, Lower Gravelle Assoc., Marimac-Massena and Massena Terminal Railroad.

DEC reports that 657 bears were harvested in the Northern Zone last fall

The New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) reports that 657 bears were taken in the Northern Zone during last hunting season.

Of those, 632 were taken in regular season, 15 with a bow and one was harvested by a youth hunter. DEC did not specify how many were taken in St. Lawrence County specifically.

In total, hunters in New York harvested a reported 1,685 bears during the 2024 hunting seasons. The 2024 bear harvest was 24 percent higher than 2023 and approximately 13 percent higher than the five- and 10-year averages.

“New York’s healthy bear population continues to provide excellent hunting opportunities,” said DEC Division of Fish and Wildlife Director Jacqueline Lendrum. “Data collected and voluntarily submitted by hunters, taxidermists, and meat processors through the Black Bear Management Cooperator Program allows DEC to monitor trends to ensure the bear population remains robust and hunting traditions continue for the long term.”

Wildlife Management Units (WMUs) within the Catskills and western Adirondacks continued to produce the highest bear harvest densities. In WMUs 3C, 3K, 3M, 4P, 4R, 4W, 4Z, 6C, 6H, and 8Y hunters harvested more than 10 bears per 100 square miles, with hunters taking more than 14 bears per 100 square miles in WMUs 3C and 6C.

Long-term trends in bear harvest density suggest that bear populations have stabilized in both the Northern and Southern Zones following population expansions that contributed to peak bear harvest densities throughout the early 2000s.

Widespread drought conditions likely contributed to the elevated bear harvest during the 2024 seasons. During periods of drought, natural food sources for bears can become scarce and bears may travel farther in search of food or congregate around available food sources. This can increase the likelihood that hunters will encounter bears.

Black bear harvest data are gathered from two main sources:

harvest reports required of all successful bear hunters and the physical examination of bears by DEC staff, cooperating taxidermists, and meat processors. Harvest estimates are made by cross-referencing these two data sources and determining the rate at which hunters report their bear harvests in each zone. In fall 2025, DEC will send a commemorative 2024 Black Bear Management Coordinator Patch and a letter confirming each bear’s age to all hunters who reported their bear harvest and submitted a tooth for age analysis.

Richard C. Billings, 94

Massena

MASSENA - The Family of Richard Billings are heartbroken to share that he has joined his wife Mary in eternal rest.

Known to most as Dick, he was born in Massena on November 24th 1930, to Hubert and Mary Billings.

He would tell all about his childhood on Skunk Ridge. He was raised outdoors. Fishing, hunting, and playing in the dirt.

He grew up to be an avid outdoorsmen, gardener, and birder. His love of all animals would often lead to less successful hunting trips.

When describing a missed shot his granddaughter Hillary exclaimed “That’s pathetic.”

He graduated from Massena High School in 1949. After graduation enlisted in the Air Force after which he enrolled at Canton ATI in 1953.

After college he went for further schooling with IBM and graduated from there in 1955.

In between the military and his schooling, he found the love of his life in his sister’s best friend. Dick and Mary were married for 70 years before her tragic death last year.

From this marriage they had three sons. Richard, Michael who pre-deceased Dick, and Mark (Susan) who provided care for him in his final year.

Dick was greatly loved and admired by his grandchildren, Emily (Pete), Hillary (William), Chandler (Ben), and Pauline. He and Mary made their childhoods magical and there was never a day they didn’t feel loved. This love extended to Pauline’s son, Jaxon.

Aside from his children, grandchildren, and great grandchild his family extended through his two sisters, Mary Jane and Leigh, his brother and sister-in-law, Joseph and Kathy, and many nieces and nephews.

A celebration of life will occur at the discretion of his family in the spring.

Arrangements are under the care and guidance of the Donaldson Funeral Home, Massena, where friends may share memories and offer condolences online at www.donaldsonfh.com.

OBITUARIES

Martha A. Halpin, 83
Ogdensburg

OGDENSBURG - It is with heavy hearts we announce the passing of our beloved mother and grandmother, Martha A. Halpin, at the age of 83.

She passed away unexpectedly, but we believe peacefully, at her home on Tuesday, March 4, 2025.

Martha was born on May 23, 1941, in Ogdensburg, the daughter of the late Robert and Beatrice (Seguin) Halpin.

She was a graduate of St. Mary's Academy and later married Gary E. Thompson. Though they eventually divorced, they remained close friends.

Martha dedicated much of her career to Hepburn Hospital, where she worked as a billing clerk from 1973 until her retirement in 2015.

Those that worked with her remember her for her kind, caring, and humorous personality.

She also worked as a cashier at Hackett Hardware where she enjoyed interacting with the public and making friends with customers.

For those that knew her well, she will be remembered fondly for her delicious "Gramma Mart's Chocolate Chip Cookies".

And although there were many that tried their hand at her infamous recipe, no one has ever been able to perfect them quite like hers.

More than anything, she was the most loving and devoted mother, grandmother, and great grandmother.

On any given day she could be seen at one of the many local sporting events cheering on her grandchildren from her van or the sidelines or any other event that celebrated and recognized those she kept closest to her heart.

Martha thoroughly enjoyed cooking and baking for others and her home was a pillar of many celebrations and holiday traditions.

She was truly the happiest when everyone could be home together, sharing a meal and countless laughs around her table. When she wasn't busy relishing in the ones she loved, she enjoyed flower gardening, decorating her home, attending church at St. Mary's Cathedral, and cheering for the New York Yankees.

Martha is survived by her seven loving children Martha (Doug) Smith, Debra Thompson, Susan Thompson, Kathleen (Kenneth) Hilborne, and Pamela (George) Morrow, all of Ogdensburg; Gary (Patricia) Thompson of Queensbury, NY, and Steven (Heather) Thompson of Phoenix, NY.

She was a cherished grandmother to 18 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren with more on the way. She is also survived by her brothers, Robert Halpin of Ogdensburg and Thomas (Marcia) Halpin of Tennessee; her sister, Elizabeth "Betty" Halpin of Ogdensburg; along with many nieces, nephews, and cousins.

EVs emit more carbon dioxide during prouction

Consumers increasingly are turning to electric vehicles (EVs) because of their perceived benefits to the environment and additional perks.

The United States Environ-mental Protection Agency says EVs typically have smaller carbon footprints than gasoline cars, even when accounting for the electricity used for charging. In addition, EVs can be more efficient in re-gard to energy use.

However, it is important to note that mining the materials that are used in the batteries required for EVs can make the EV manufactur-ing process more energy-intensive than making internal combustion energy vehicles (ICE), according to Earth.org.

The Internetwork for Sustain-ability says EVs and hybrid cars emit more carbon dioxide than traditional cars during production. The additional environmental cost of transporting these batteries also results in a higher carbon foot-print than ICE vehicles.

However, the EPA points out that the greenhouse gas emissions associated with an EV over its life-time are typically lower than those from an ICE vehicle, even when accounting for manufacturing.

Together let's drive™

Clean vehicle interiors can improve your driving experience

A number of factors are involved in keeping a vehicle functioning and looking good.

Ensuring a vehicle interior is clean and tidy is easily overlooked, but such efforts can improve the driving experience.

Drivers who want their cars and trucks to look their best should not forget their vehicle interiors. Drivers unsure where to start can spruce up their vehicle interiors in the following ways.

Remove any trash

Wrappers, receipts, empty water bottles, and other items can quickly pile up inside a car, especially for drivers who have young children. Routinely go through the vehicle to gather and remove debris.

Vacuum the interior

Start off with a can of compressed air and blow out dust and any other dirt that has accumulated in tight crevices. Then use a high-powered vacuum to conduct a thorough cleaning. Pay attention to the seams of car seats, door handles, armrests, floor mats (and under them), underneath child safety seats, and the trunk or cargo area. If you don't have a vacuum with a lot of suction, utilize one at a do-it-yourself car wash location.

Scrub the floor mats

Drivers with rubber mats can remove them and make a mild cleaning solution of a few drops of dish soap and warm water. Use a softbristled brush to clean the mats. Upholstered mats can be shampooed using a carpet cleaner. Then rinse and hang to dry. All mats should be completely dry before being returned to the vehicle.

Clean the upholstery

Seats can get dirty and dingy over time. For cloth vehicle seats, use a proper spray or foam upholstery cleaner. All-purpose cleaner can work on vinyl seats, but leather seats require a special leather soap and conditioner. Avoid products with silicone, which can stain your clothes and may make interior surfaces too slippery.

Address glass surfaces

Turn your attention to the windshield, windows and mirrors. You can use a store-bought glass cleaner on these surfaces and a lint-free cloth. Avoid products containing ammonia, which may damage tinting on windows.

Consider lingering odors

If the interior of the car has an odor, the cabin air filter may need to be changed, or there may be water entering the vehicle somewhere and creating a musty smell. Seek out any problems and address. A car air freshener can further improve the interior smell.

A thorough deep cleaning can be done at least once a month to keep a vehicle's interior fresh and clean.

However, keeping up with interior cleaning and maintenance by doing small jobs regularly will reduce the need for routine deep cleaning.

Various warning signs can indicate bad brakes

Each component of a vehicle performs an important function that ensures the car runs safely and soundly. A working brake system is vital to vehicle safety, so any issues affecting the brakes merit attention. Fortunately, there are various warning signs that indicate to vehicle owners it is time to replace brakes.

· Grinding sound: A deep grinding metal sound indicates that brakes are wearing down. Brake pads typically come equipped with tiny metal ridges on the bottom of the pads to alert the driver that the pads have worn down. Continuing to drive like this will put metal on metal, which can damage the rotors.

· Squealing sound: Some brake pads have built-in wear indicators. A driver may notice a squealing, screeching or whining noise when the brakes are engaged, says Bridgestone. Grinding or squealing often indicates that the brakes need to be replaced.

· Pulling to one side: When braking, drivers might notice the car pulling over to one side. This indicates brake pads are unevenly worn out, causing the car to pull to one side when braking.

· Visible wear and tear: A visual inspection of the brakes can give drivers an idea of their condition. If the pads are less than a quarter-inch thick, it is time to have them inspected or replaced.

· Brake pedal vibration: When brakes are working properly, the vehicle will smoothly slow to a stop. If the brakes are worn out or if the rotors are damaged, the break pedal can vibrate and the car may even buck as it comes to a stop. This means the brakes and possibly the rotors will need to be changed.
