Ceremony relieves soldier

The American Civil War drew thousands of soldiers to fight for both the Union and Confederacy. Some served through the entirety of the war. Many enlisted later and didn't see as much of the battlefield horrors.

Hiram Hunkins was one of the latter. He was born in New Berlin, Waukesha County, Wisconsin Territory in 1844. He was the oldest son of Benjamin and Sophrona (Hollister) Hunkins.

Hiram enlisted in Company K of the 48th Wisconsin Infantry on March 23, 1865, less than a month before Gen. Robert E. Lee surrendered to Gen. Ulysses S. Grant at Appomattox Court House, marking the end of hostilities.

Company K was one of eight companies mustered in at that time, according to "Military History of Wisconsin." It left Camp Washburn, Milwaukee, March 28 to go to St. Louis. From there, the soldiers marched to Fort Scott, south of Kansas City, arriving April 28, 1865.

On Aug. 10, 1865, the 48th was sent to Lawrence, Kansas, where they were paid and hoped to be able to go home.

"The exigencies of the service, demanded a force to escort the trains and mail through the hostile Indian Country, and the regiment was ordered upon that duty," "Military History" said.

Eventually, Company K was sent to Fort Lyon,

Colorado, to escort mail and government trains. The company mustered out at Fort Leavenworth March 24, 1866.

After the war, like many Civil War soldiers, the Hunkins family (Hiram, his parents and a brother) moved to Nebraska by horse-drawn wagon. Hiram married Cytherea Sterns in Lincoln on Dec. 1, 1866. They moved to an 80-acre homestead west of Beaver Crossing April 26, 1869. The proof of homestead was finalized Oct. 14, 1874, and the land patent signed Dec. 30, 1874.

Hiram filed for another homestead in 1907, this one in Alberta, Canada.

"However, he never moved there because a daughter, Orlinda, that he was counting on to be his housekeeper would not go," Todd Hunkins, one of his descendants, said. Todd was one of the speakers at a ceremony Oct. 15 to honor Hiram.

Without any improvements to the land, the application was considered abandoned.

Benjamin Hunkins homesteaded the southeast quarter of the section in Nebraska. He is credited with founding the nearby town, originally called Hunkins. To avoid confusion with another Nebraska town called Hoskins, the town was renamed Cordova.

Cytherea died in 1898 and was buried in the Leland Cemetery northeast of town. Hiram lived in Nebraska until his move to Greeley, Colorado, to live with his daughter, Annis Barnes.

"By the 1930s, his sight failed him, but he could still quote some of the literary classics from memory and was well versed on international and domestic political events," Todd said.

During Hiram's life, he saw Nebraska go from a territory to a state. Twenty-two states were added to the Union. He lived through five wars – Mexican War, Civil War, Spanish American War, World War I and World War II.

Hiram later moved to the Veterans Hospital in Cheyenne, Wyoming, where he died March 4, 1947, at age 102.

Hiram was survived by two daughters, Annis and Orlinda, and four sons, Orin, Ernest, Benjamin and Robert.

"His body was returned to this Seward County cemetery to be buried beside his wife – thus making him the last Union Civil War veteran to be buried in Seward County," Todd said.

On Oct. 15, family members, visitors and members of the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War gathered at Leland Cemetery to honor Hiram. Shiloh Camp Commander John Surman officially relieved Hiram from his post. A medallion and flag holder were unveiled next to his headstone.
