Keiran Bray wins FFA scholarship; Steele Arnold heads to Europe

By MALISHA REED, Nucla High School

The Nucla High School FFA chapter helped the Norwood FFA chapter host an FFA Quiz Bowl, an employment skills, career development event this past week. These types of events not only allow students to participate in activities with FFA, but the winners also advance to the state competition in June.

At this event was a scholarship contest for the Washington Leadership Conference. This specific conference provides FFA members a premier leadership experience, while exposing them to the rich history of Washington, D.C. The Washington Leadership Conference also inspires FFA members to become change-makers in their communities. Each day of the conference focuses on a different principle taught through the context of the nation's capital; those pillars are "explore, encourage, advocate and serve." At the end of the week, members leave with a "living to serve plan" they can implement in their communities.

Keiran Bray, of Nucla, won the $1,200 scholarship to pay for her registration; she will attend the leadership conference this summer.

This week, Nucla's FFA chapter will be celebrating FFA Week. First founded by a group of young farmers in 1928, the FFA mission during national FFA Week is to prepare future generations for the challenges of feeding a growing population by teaching members about various topics relating to agriculture. Initially, the holiday was observed on a single day to recognize George Washington's example and legacy as a leader and farmer.

Now it has grown to a week-long holiday during which members develop their potential for leadership, personal growth and career success through various activities. This year Nucla's chapter will be hosting several events, including elementary education demonstrations, a teacher appreciation breakfast, a career development contest for middle school students, and a high school pep assembly where FFA officers talk to the student body about what they can accomplish in FFA. There will also be daily activities, including dress-up days, agriculture trivia, and an emblem scavenger hunt — and contests, or the "Ag Olympics."

Nasland and Connelly get state podium finishes

t was a wild week for Mustang wrestling at the state tournament in Denver. Head coach Rob McCabe told the Forum on Sunday the team went 2-2 on Thursday with J.W. Nasland and Arthur Connelly winning their first matches by pin and tech fall, respectively.

Riley McCabe, wrestling in the women's bracket, lost by fall though she had a good comeback in her match. Coach said "inexperience" is what cost her. Paxton Caruso lost to a Limon kid his first match

On Friday in the quarter-finals, Nasland lost to his opponent from Cedaredge, getting taken down and pinned. "That one hurt," coach said. "That stung."

Connelly pinned his opponent in the quarter-finals, the No. 3 seed out of Holly, and the team knew that they'd have Connelly wrestling Saturday — regardless.

In their consolation matches, both McCabe and Caruso lost. McCabe was winning, but got

Annika Kristiansen is new 4-H coordinator

By REGAN TUTTLE, Editor

nnika Kristiansen, of Norwood, is the San Miguel Basin's new 4-H coordinator. She was hired by the Colorado State University-Extension Office recently and is excited to be already working in her role full-time.

She's been in the local area for six years, having come most recently from California. As a child, she grew up on the East Coast on a small farm with gardens, sheep and chickens that her family butchered.

She has a background in journalism and teaching — she's worked as a writer and also worked at a Waldorf-inspired school in Ridgway — and said she's excited to bring her experience to the kids in the basin.

She knows livestock is traditionally the highlight of 4-H in the local area. She's not been to the San Miguel Basin Fair yet, but is excited to be there this year as part of her new job.

"I'm excited to see the animals for sure," she said. "I'm excited to see the fruits of (the kids') labor."

Kristiansen can't wait to meet local young people and hear about their projects, and she wants to increase outreach and offer other diverse ways of participating in 4-H, outside of raising market animals.

She'll be scheduling events at local schools and libraries soon — in all communities, including Nucla and Naturita — to let people know that she wants to build 4-H membership. She's aware that Carol Koon used to sponsor the West End Mini-Bakers, and he combined middle school girls basketball team, made of Nucla and Norwood girls, was not only undefeated this season, but they won the San Juan Basin League championship game on Saturday, Feb. 18, in the Nucla High School gym.

The girls — Reese Elwood, Shay Snyder, Maria Camacho, Holli Johnson, Maggie Andrews, Josey Tedder, Lantry Galley, Sidney Westfall, Sydney Tomlinson and Brylea Butler — are eighth graders, and most all of them have been playing together since the fourth or fifth grade.

Because they walked into the championship weekend as the No. 1 seed, they had the privilege of hosting the day's tournament.

With a big crowd in the stands of the Nucla gym, the girls played at 9 a.m. first, against Dove Creek. The final score was 26-2.

"We didn't pressure them very much. We saved our girls for the championship," said head coach Stan Galley in an interview on Sunday.

Afterward, Mancos and Dolores played each other, in a closer game, with Mancos winning 31-26.

Coach said the Mancos team played "fairly decently" and also Cont. on Pg. 2

SELF ESTEEM ELEVATED

Have you given up on 2023 already?

By CHERYL ROSEBOROUGH

etting your yearly intentions and living up to the expectations of those intentions can be challenging. Most people give up on their goals in the second month of the year. Have you given up on 2023? If you have, there are ways to stay focused and keep working toward your goal. Below are some helpful ways for you to still put legs under your dreams.

- Get an accountability partner. Everyone needs accountability. It helps you stay on track and committed to your plan of action. There is a mutual understanding that you will support each other on a regular basis. When you want to quit or give up, you have someone that holds you up and keeps pushing you to your destiny. I always suggest that you be very intentional about choosing this person. Your accountability partner should consistently encourage you and challenge you to do better and be better.
- Make sure your vision is what you are purposed to do. We all have a purpose. I have seen a number of people have FOMO (fear of missing out). FOMO coupled with envy, is an access door to failure. I have watched quite a few people end up walking out someone else's vision and not the vision that has been set apart for them. So, take some quiet time to ensure that you are doing what you are purposed to do. Your vision is what should keep you inspired to get up daily.
- Make sure your vision has a give-back component. It is always great to be financially secure. I suggest taking a small portion of your net profits or your monthly salary and give back to the community in which you live and serve. It could be providing bottled water to a homeless organization or donating to a food pantry. Whatever organization you choose, let it make an impact so that you feel good about giving back. You will see that the reciprocity comes back to you.

- Be flexible with some parts of your vision. There are areas where you know you need some time to come to fruition. If you are incorporating a business or getting a patent before you can launch, understand that takes time. It takes time to do your research about many things. I always suggest finding legal representation in most cases. Some things will take time to get approval (i.e. trademark and patent). Proper planning and teamwork makes any dream work.
- Get a planner. It doesn't matter which type of planner you get, whether it is an electronic planner or a hard-cover planner. Make sure you are putting strategy behind achieving your goals. This is where you and your accountability partner can support one another. Set your weekly intentions and check in regularly to make sure you are on track.
- Put mental health practices in place. As you are on your journey to greatness, stress will set in from time to time. I highly suggest that you make mental health practices a priority. Take breaks when needed, practice self-care, take long walks, and exercise as often as you can. All of this increases your mental and physical health.
- Celebrate your successes along the way. It is sometimes hard to remember to celebrate ourselves as we hit milestones with our goals. It could be a little celebration, like your favorite coffee at your favorite coffee shop or that pair of shoes or shirt you have been eyeballing for months. As you celebrate, make sure that it is within your budget.

History: Rimrocker Historical Society

One family's mysterious history in the West End, Part 2

By SHARON JOHANNSEN for the Rimrocker Historical Society

ike, Josh and Aimee talked quite a bit over the next few months, getting to know one another, talking about family. It came up in a conversation that there was something he hadn't told them about his DNA Test.

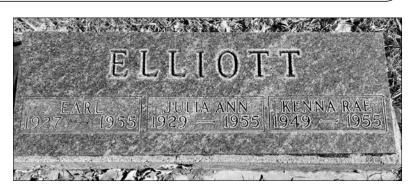

He had a hit on his test that said Manly Clark could be his grandfather. What? Could Manly Clark be Duane's biological father? He said that he messaged Manly, but got no response back. He didn't want to mention it and get everyone's hopes up, so he hadn't shared it before.

But if you know my daughter ... The hunt was on.

In this era of technology you can find anyone, if you want to bad enough. She found Manly in Del Norte, Colorado. She got an address and wrote to him. She explained the circumstances of Duane's adoption and wondered if he might be willing to visit with her. The letter got no response.

She figured he didn't want to get involved and probably had his own family and life. The search ended again at that point ... until I was working at the Tabeguache Trading Company one day.

A man came in and asked to see Aimee. I explained that she was at home and asked if I could I help him. He said he needed to talk to her and asked if he could get her address. Of course, this mother would never give out her address to a stranger, so I said I would call her, and could I get his name?

He stated, "Manly Clark." I just about fell over. I explained I was Duane's wife and was glad to meet him. I got Aimee on the phone, told her she needed to get to the store, but gave no reason. She came right away, and I introduced her to Manly. She was speechless, and the tears came very fast.

After things settled down, he explained to us that he was not Duane's biological father, but he was sure his sister, Earlene, was Duane's biological mother. He told us that the family knew his sister was pregnant, but had never met the man she was with. He said he and his brother, Floyd, were at their grandmothers' house in Denver watching TV when the news came on. It showed a nurse holding this baby boy up. They stated he had been abandoned at Denver General Hospital, and if anyone had any information on the baby to please come forward with it.

His grandmother pointed at the screen and said, "That is Earlene's baby, I just know it." We were so grateful for the information. Unfortunately, Manly's sister had died, and the history and circumstances of Duane's birth went with her.

We were beyond excited to find out he had two uncles, Manly and Floyd Clark. They both came to Nucla to meet all of us. They were happy to meet Duane and his family, and to learn about his life.

As we near the end of the story, we should say that we did get a possible hit on Duane's father. We know he was in the military and also had passed away. At this point in our lives, the search has been ended. We are happy to know the history, but are content with our lives.

Every Memorial Day we visit the graves of Earl, Julia and Kenna Rae. This family tragedy in 1955 brought Duane to us, and we will always honor their memory.

This column will be continued next week too.

"It is one of the best events our chapter hosts, and is a great way to show the younger students all of the opportunities in FFA," chapter representatives said.

In other school news, Steele Arnold has been selected as a student-athlete ambassador to represent the U.S. overseas. He will be traveling this summer to play basketball in Italy, Austria and Germany. He is currently seeking opportunities to raise money for this trip.

Additionally, in March and April, True North Youth Program is planning a series of visits to local equine centers, including Metaphorse in Montrose, Horses for Healing in Montrose, Grace Reins in Ridgway, and Jubilee Stables in Norwood. The goal is for high school students with an interest in a career involving horses to have an opportunity to learn about the wide range of career options available.

The types of career options to be explored will include horse breeding, starting and training, horse boarding, horsemanship and riding lessons, trail rides and other tourist activities, equine-assisted therapy/healing, and also equine-assisted learning.

had some good-sized girls on the court. The combined Nucla-Norwood team had previously beat them though all three times in their undefeated season, at home and away.

For the final game, the girls then bested the Mancos team 55-19, afterward each receiving a medal to commemorate the experience.

Galley said the girls play well together.

"They've played so much together," Galley said. "They know where each other are going to be. We've kind of pushed at them to be unselfish and not worry about who is scoring the most points. They've bought into that the last few years," he said.

Galley, who is assisted by his wife on the court, has been coaching the girls for the last five years. The husband and wife team also have a daughter, their oldest child, on the team.

With the season over, the coaches and the girls will take a bit of break, but they're not done yet. They have plans for AAU tournament play this spring. While the girls won't practice four days a week like they have since November, they will be meeting up to practice a few times weekly. The AAU tournaments start in March, and Galley said there are about four he'd like to get them into—for the experience and to keep playing, but to also face tougher competition on the court.

Coach said at the same time, some of the girls will be competing in track and field events, and many show 4-H animals too. The girls seem to be competitive in more than just basketball.

After five years of working with the eighth graders, coach said it's been a good experience.

"Misty and I are proud are of the girls, and they're a good bunch of girls," he said. "They try hard and they're very coachable. ... We enjoy coaching them, and wouldn't trade any of them for anything."

MRH announces student loan repayment for eligible employees

orecruit and retain top talent, Montrose Regional Health (MRH) has announced a student loan repayment program allowing eligible full-time caregivers to receive up to $10,800 paid directly to their student loan balance over the course of the program. The program launched at the end of January.

"We are known for caring for our community like family," said Jeff Mengenhausen, CEO of Montrose Regional Health. "We are proud to show our caregivers one more way we care for them like family."

"This new student loan financial wellness program is one example of how MRH cares about investing in the growth and financial wellness of our caregivers," said Erin Skees, MRH chief human resources officer.

The hospital is working to attract new caregivers and also maintain its highly skilled staff, who have helped the hospital win several awards, including being the only hospital in Colorado to be named on the Top 100 Rural & Community Hospital list seven times in a row. The student loan program is intended to empower individuals and families to reach their financial goals faster, allowing their college education to move them forward, instead of holding them back.

Eligible employees who want to participate will need to apply for the program, prove student loan debt, and their loans must be current. The area of study of the loan does not need to pertain to their current position to be eligible for repayment.

New employees are eligible for the program, once they have successfully completed the repayment program application process and followed the same guidelines as those already employed by the hospital. Montrose Regional Health is currently hiring both clinical and non-clinical positions. For more information, the public may visit MontroseHealth.com/ Careers.

The program is expected to cost the hospital more than $100,000 in 2023 and is part of a massive strategy to invest in caregivers totaling more than $2.5 million dollars in 2023. Last year, Montrose Regional Health was identified as a best-in-class employer by Gallagher's Best-In-Class Benchmarking Analysis for creating organizational structures, workplace policies and total rewards, inclusively engaging and motivating its employees.

Lasagna feeds a family of picky eaters love to cook but am challenged by cooking for a household of picky eaters. This is one of my family's favorite dishes that they all can agree on. I also make it when I know I will be feeding a lot of guests, because it passes Lthat "picky eater" challenge. The key: use the shredded cheese your family prefers, but leave in the Ricotta and do not substitute with cottage cheese. Most all of the ingredients can be found locally.

By CARLA REAMS

Reams Family Lasagna

Ingredients

- 1½ jars of Prego Traditional Italian Sauce
- 1 ½ lbs. of local ranch beef (or elk)
- 1 package of Jimmy Dean, regular or Italian, sausage
- 1 package American Beauty lasagna noodles
- 15-20 oz. Ricotta cheese
- 1 egg
- 1½ packages shredded

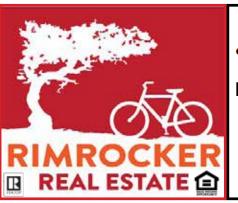

Mozzarella cheese 2 packages shredded Colby Jack cheese

1 package Parmesan cheese

Instructions

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Boil water for noodles; then allow noodles to tender without over-cooking (they should still be somewhat firm). Brown hamburger and sausage in skillet together, drain (do not rinse), and stir in Prego sauce. Combine Ricotta cheese, 1 egg, and ½ package of Mozzarella cheese in a bowl for layering. Layer noodles on bottom of baking dish (fills 9x13x2 pan), spread Ricotta mixture, layer meat mixture, cover in shredded cheese. Repeat this until the pan is full. Top with last layer of noodles and shredded Parmesan. Bake for 25 minutes, or until top layer is lightly browned. Let rest for 10-15 minutes prior to serving. Leftovers can be

she said yes — baking, sewing and even things like skateboard projects are welcome as ideas for participation.

"The sky is the limit," she said.

KJ Johnson is teaching shooting and archery, and Randy Crawford is teaching leather crafting. Other adults who would like to come forward and sponsor something should contact Kristiansen at the office and seek approval through paperwork and training. She can be reached at 970-327-4393 or by email at annikak@sanmiguelcountyco.gov.

She's reached out to the existing 4-H clubs already, specifically their leaders, and hopes to attend club meetings this spring to meet the members, say hello and hear about what they're working on.

Even though the four clubs are self-proclaimed livestock clubs, students can join any of those clubs for membership — even if they don't have breeding projects or market animals. Sign-ups are from Oct. 1 to April 15, and returning members still have to re-enroll in 4-H every year.

Club meetings take place at least six times a year, not including field trips, parties and other special outings. Kristiansen is working on beefing up 4-H curriculum for in-between programming, too, so kids can meet up for 4-H in different ways.

She's into a holistic way of learning, strengthening life skills, and wants to promote communication, public speaking and empathy.

Kristiansen owns a home in Norwood and isn't going anywhere anytime soon. She's also taking the hunting certification course with Tony Bonacquista. She hasn't hunted before now, but wants to in the future. Shooting and harvesting her own food is something she personally wants to learn.

reversed and pinned, with inexperience again to blame. Caruso's match was close.

On Friday night, Nasland had a rematch with the North Fork kid he beat in the regional tournament, and Nasland pinned him again, sending himself into the Saturday round.

Connelly, in his next match, lost to a Mancos kid, the No. 2 seed he lost to in regionals. Still, coach said Connelly did make improvements.

On Saturday morning, chaos ensued as seven wrestlers didn't make weight, including Nasland's opponent who had one extra pound. For Nasland, the forfeit was a game-changer. Driving back to the hotel, spirits were high, since he and coach knew he was getting on the podium.

"But how high can we go?" coach asked him. "Are we going to be tough enough to take third? Or feel sorry for ourselves and not go to the potential we can?"

After confirming things with the head table, coach prepped Nasland and Connelly for their matches.

In the consolation semi-finals, Nasland faced the kid projected to take fourth, a guy from Monte Vista. It was a slow start, but Nasland kept working and got into a situation where his opponent tweaked his knee. The kid was able to get up and walk, but Nasland got a take-down and pinned the kid to get into the thirdand-fourth-place match.

"It was pretty exciting," coach said. "He lost his quarter-final match and battled all the way back up."

Then, Nasland wrestled the kid from Cedaredge, not before talking with his dad, assistant coach Lars Nasland, and Coach McCabe.

"He won 3-1 to take third," coach said. "It was one of his better matches. He stayed in good position, didn't try to do things or out-think himself. He just wrestled like he knew how, like he knew what he was doing."

Connelly then wrestled the same kid he "tech-falled" in Round 1, a kid who had a "heck of a tourney," a kid from Meeker who took sixth overall.

And, Connelly got another tech fall to wrestle for third and fourth. He faced a kid from Yuma, and somehow got his hand in the kid's head gear, which got him a call for illegal grabbing. That penalty cost Connelly a point, but furthermore changed the "tempo" of the match. Connelly had to try and get points and battle, but was taken down at the very end.

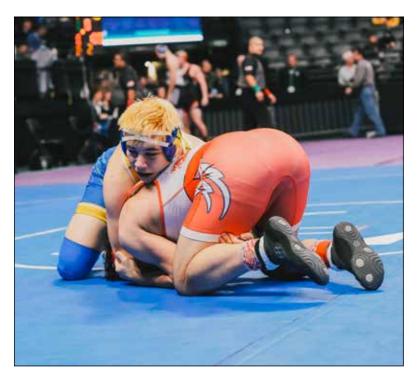

"He got the short end of the stick," coach said. "It wasn't a wrestling move or technique. It was a penalty point that changed the outcome of the match."

Connelly was devastated, but by Sunday was in better spirits, ready to get back to work, and holding the fourth place state title.

This year, having two guys on the podium is the first time Nucla has had state placers since 2019. Additionally, the Mustangs as a team tied for 18th out of 53 2A teams. McCabe said Nucla was also tied for 66th out of 203 schools in the state; it's in the top third of wrestling this year.

At the tournament, watching the big score board at the Pepsi Center in Denver, the two coaches talked about the future. Their goal is for Nucla to be in the Top 15 next

"I want us to have our name up there again," McCabe said.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED DECISION

The Colorado Division of Reclamation, Mining and Safety has issued a proposed decision to approve Bond Release Application No. 25 (SL-25) for the New Horizon Mine, Permit No. C-1981-008. The Division proposes to approve Phase I bond release on 2.7 acres of dryland pasture located in the southeast quarter of Section 6 (topsoil stockpile E footprint). The Division proposes to approve Phase I bond release on 1.9 acres located in the southeast quarter of Section 36 that have been reclaimed to permanent stock pond SP2. And the Division proposes to approve Phase I bond release on 16.3 acres of irrigated pasture and 3.6 acres of dryland pasture (Parcels DP-10, DP-12, and DP-13) located in south east quarter of Section 36.

The Division proposes to approve Phase II bond release on 11.4 acres of reclaimed pasture. 2.9 acres have been reclaimed as Irrigated pasture, parcel IP-10. A portion of this parcel requires minor adjustment to correct an area of differential settling and the formation of a small gully. The Division proposes to approve 3.6 acres of dryland pasture (Parcels DP-10, DP-12, and DP-13) located in south east quarter of Section 36. And the Division proposes to approve Phase II bond release on 4.9 acres of dryland pasture, parcels DP-16 and DP-17, located in the southeast quarter of Section 6. The Division proposes to approve to release the applicant from liability for: all reclamation work on eleven reclaimed monitoring wells. The Divison entered 0.001 acres into the Phase III release catagory to allow the permit system to display that Phase III release was approved for the wells. Eventhough the wells had no acreages associated with them in the application due to their negligible footprint. Specifically wells GW-N41, GW-N42, GW-N43, GW-N16P1, GW-17P1, GW-N19P1, MFBF-71, MW BF-63, GW-N-40, GW-N39, and GW-N3. The surface operation is operated by Elk Ridge Mining and Reclamation, LLC under the provisions of the Colorado Surface Coal Mining Reclamation Act of 1979. The bond release application was submitted by Elk Ridge Mining and Reclamation, LLC on May 16, 2022. The permittee is requesting Phase I, II and III bond release for nine (9) plugged and abandoned monitoring wells, and two (2) plugged and abandoned backfill wells. The permittee is requesting Phase I release on 24.5 acres that have been backfilled and graded. The permittee is requesting Phase II release on 11.4 acres of dryland pasture and irrigated pasture reclaimed areas. The affected area is located in Montrose County, approximately 1.7 miles Northwest of Nucla, Colorado.

Copies of the proposed decision are available for review at https://dnrweblink.state.co.us/drms/ search.aspx by searching C1981008 in the "Permit No" field.
