This ain't my first rodeo

Eleven-year-old Roxton Reed is not your average Azle Elementary sixth-grade student.

To his friends and family, he's Roxy, but in the rodeo world, he's known as Big Hat Roxy.

Roxy took an interest in rodeo clowns back in 2019. He would meet the clowns at different rodeos, and he started asking them questions, trying to figure out how to fit himself into that unique role that gets all the crowds laughing and cheering.

Today, Roxy can name off rodeo clowns as easily as he can bull riders.

"I like 'Backflip' Johnny Dudley, Flint (Rasmussen), John Harrison, and Brinson — he's with the Canadian PBR," Roxy said.

Last year, Roxy took on the nickname Big Hat Roxy, and he's following in the tracks of some of his favorites. Last summer, he was able to perform at three rodeos on Bonham and one in Ladonia.

"Any time we go to a rodeo, Roxy goes right up and starts talking to people, gets involved, asks if he can be involved in the rodeos," said Hollee Reed, Roxy's mom. "He studies and researches constantly. He wants to know everything."

His Christmas list is full of rodeo clown stuff, like a new jersey with Big Hat on it, a wireless mic, and rodeo skits.

Rodeo skits? "You can buy skits that other people come up with for your act," said Roxy.

Roxy spends a lot of time rehearsing his act. Reed said she finds him out practicing on the family property all the time — in the backyard, in the garage, out in the driveway.

He's even working on his jokes:

"Because of COVID, my mom went to the Cowboys' store and bought us all jerseys."

Azle teacher gets national recognition for course

BY DON MUNSCHE
editor@azlenews.net

The best teachers all aspire to inspire their students in some way in their lives.

Lisa Helm hopes a course, Outdoor Adventures, that she teaches at Azle High School will trigger an interest in activities students can carry through life.

"My goal is to expose them to as many outdoors activities as possible, because through one of them they're going to find something that they love and is new to them," she said. "For instance, I took them rock climbing, and a kid was like, 'Oh, my gosh, I found my new passion.' So that's why I do this class."

For her efforts in teaching the course and the impact she is making, she was named Outdoors Tomorrow Foundation's Educator of the Year for 2022. She will be honored Jan. 7 at the Dallas Safari Club's banquet at the Dallas Omni Hotel.

Helm said the honor is "very humbling" and that she is thankful and blessed. She describes the recognition as a shared award because of everyone pitching in and allowing the class to happen. She also appreciates the many donations, such as fishing rods, to the class.

"I felt very honored to be recognized and selected out of all these teachers," she said. "And really, it's all the teachers that taught this before me."

She also appreciates AHS administrators' support for the program.

Scot McClure, director of education for the Outdoors Tomorrow Foundation, based in Southlake, said his program is in 44 states. Helm was the winner out of 750 schools and 800 teachers. Some schools have more than one teacher.

The Outdoors Tomorrow Foundation said its mission is to teach outdoor education and to promote and fund conservation of wildlife worldwide, according to its website.

The award is based on having an active program that is growing and is supported by the administration

Lord's Acre raises nearly $12K for local nonprofits

BY JESSICA MCKINNEY
azlereporter@azlenews.net

First United Methodist Church of Azle is giving back to the community in a big way.

The church held its annual Lord's Acre the first weekend in October, an event that invites the community to come shop, eat, and bid on auction items, all to raise money for a good cause.

"In the Bible, it talks about the early Christians setting aside an acre of their land to be planted, cultivated and harvested by the farmers, then given to the poor to help them out," said Ken Leemon, director of serving ministers at First United Methodist Azle.

Jeff Mahlmann was the chairman of this year's Lord Acre. Together with 29 additional church leaders and a group of more than 100 volunteers, Mahlmann oversaw a huge three-day garage sale, book sale, dessert bar, smoked brisket lunch and live auction, which raised $11,881.60

The money will be distributed equally between Safe Harbor Counseling Center, Community Caring Center, Good N.E.W.S. and Eagle

Mountain Pregnancy Help Center.

Safe Harbor Counseling Center provides "professional counseling from a Christian perspective at an affordable cost to Parker and surrounding counties." Counseling sessions are available on a sliding scale to clients, with some qualifying for free counseling in exchange for community service. These services can be provided thanks to generous donations and support from the communities Safe Harbor serves.

The CCC supports the Azle community by providing food, clothing and small household items to those in need and it is 100% reliant on donations from the community and organizations.

"We feel so fortunate to be supported by FUMC of Azle," said Kristie Cooper, assistant director of CCC. "Their Lord's Acre is an amazing blessing to the community in so many ways."

Eagle Mountain Pregnancy Help Center is a support system that provide "hope and healing to individuals involved in unplanned pregnancies," offering spiritual, emotional and physical support to clients.

Karen Ogea, president of the EMPHC, said in an email, "The Eagle Mountain Pregnancy Help Center receives much-appreciated help from many churches and individuals whose expectation is that the funds are used in ministry to the mothers and families who visit our center.

"This support, both financially and physically, helps Eagle Mountain Pregnancy Help Center serve the community, helping mothers choose life. Support to our center provides materially to the mothers and families in our communities, making for a stronger community for all. As we see the Lord for His ministry and provision, we remain humbled and grateful to receive from the ministries Christ is using in our area. Thank you, FUMC."

Good N.E.W.S. was established in 1997 and relies on help from the community in order to further its mission to provide help and support to the elderly population.

Terri Bartlett, director of Good N.E.W.S., said that she is "humbled by the generous donation from the church and the community as a whole.

"It is heartwarming to know that our senior citizens are held in such high regard."

Council looks at comprehensive master plan

editor@azlenews.net

Azle City Councilmember Randa Goode would like to see the city develop a new comprehensive master plan.

Mayor Alan Brundrett, though, differs on the need to conduct a new plan, primarily because of costs and necessity.

Council heard a presentation about the plan at its Dec. 7 meeting. David Hawkins, director of planning and development for the city, said the agenda item was initiated by the Planning and Zoning Commission, which is charged with overseeing the comprehensive master plan and may make recommendations of changes to the council.

At the meeting, council requested to have a joint meeting with the P&Z Commission to discuss updates for the comprehensive master plan. No date has been set yet for a joint meeting, but Hawkins said in an email that it is anticipated that one could be held in January.

The comp master plan features information on the future land use plan, throughfare plan, parks plan and demographics. The master plan was adopted on September 20, 2005. There have been several minor amendments to specific areas on a case-by-case basis since its adoption, city officials said.

"Every few years, they will take a look at it, evaluate it and see if there's anything that needs to be changed or updated," Hawkins told council, adding the P&Z Commission examined the plan a couple of months ago and thought the overall document is a good plan and does not need a major overhaul.

But there are a few sections commissioners would like to update in the next few months, such as demographics, because the plan needs to reflect 2020 census data, as opposed to 2000 data, and depict the city as it is now. The commission also would like to look at the throughfare plan and evaluate certain roads that may need to be revised or removed to reflect current development trends in the city. And on the parks plan, commissioners want to see a focus on requiring new usable open space for all residential developments under current and/or PD zoning districts, according to the agenda packet.

Hawkins said his department could get the process started on making these changes to the plan in January and present the modifications to the council in February or March.

Goode said she would like to see a brand new comp plan and that it be based on a new study.

"There's a whole lot of things that just don't apply to this anymore," she said, pointing out, for instance, the plan mentioning the city needing more houses. Numerous homes have been built or are being built now.

One other councilmember, Stacy Peek, thinks an update or replacement of the comp master plan is needed.

"It's my thought we need to perform a thorough review of the current master plan," Peek said in an email. "Either we need to create a new master plan or complete an extensive update of the current plan. It's important that the plan align with our vision for the future of Azle."

Hawkins explained some reasons why the city has a comp master plan, such as the city requiring zoning must follow the comp master plan, which is a visionary document. A new comp master plan would come with a price tag because of the consultant fee, and would require public input and take eight to 12 months to complete as it will be an overhaul, he said. Mayor Brundrett spoke against formulating a new plan, mentioning the costs involved, but the council agreed to have a joint meeting with the P&Z and talk about the comp master plan.

AISD approves partnership with Tarleton

azlereporter@azlenews.net

Azle High School seniors who are sitting in the top 33% of their class can count on at least one guaranteed letter of acceptance this summer if they apply to Tarleton State University.

During the Dec. 13 meeting of the Azle ISD Board of Trustees, members voted unanimously to approve a partnership with the university, which gives automatic acceptance to top students in the district after graduation.

"We are extremely excited about this program and the opportunities it is going to provide our students," said Azle ISD Superintendent Todd Smith. "As a Tarleton State alumni, I am extremely proud TSU reached out to Azle ISD."

Azle ISD joins about 80 other school districts in the Distinguished High School Partnership program with Tarleton.

This automatic acceptance also means that students will not have to submit their scores for the ACT (American College Test) or SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test); however, not submitting test scores could compromise their consideration for scholarships.

Students who meet Tarleton's criteria may also have their admissions application fee waived. For steps to apply, visit www.tarleton.edu/admissions/steps-to-apply.html.

According to the agreement between AISD and Tarleton, "graduates who qualify for Tarleton's Guaranteed Award Program (GAP) and attend Tarleton will receive an award guarantee $1,000 above the GAP level for which they qualify if the student is ranked in the top 10% of their graduating class, or $500 above the GAP for which they qualify if the student is ranked in the top 25% (but not top 10%) of their graduating class."

Students will have to apply for acceptance as well as for scholarships, including the GAP. For more information about GAP eligibility and criteria, visit www.tarletonstate.us/gap.

to the students enrolled in the course. As one who personally enjoys outdoor activities, such as hunting and fishing, I cannot think of a better program to offer our high school students.”

Smith added that while teaching agricultural science at Azle High School, he taught wildlife management and Helm took it as an elective course, and the class helped ignite her passion for the outdoors.

“The outdoors education course she now teaches is very similar to the agriculture wildlife management course,” he said.

AN ADVENTURE IN TEACHING

Helm is in her 19th year in Azle. She began teaching the Outdoors Adventures course in 2016. She teaches three sections. The class began in 2015. Helm also teaches professional communications and PE.

She was born in Fort Worth and graduated from Azle High in 1998. Her parents, Derrell and Peggy Helm, were educators in AISD.

In the class, she teaches hiking, backpacking, hunting, fishing, archery, paddle sports, outdoor cooking, conservation, and water and boater safety. Students learn fire-building, orienteering (compass skills) and survival skills, and they get to take field trips to do activities. She has taken students to the state archery tournament each year since she has taught the class. She has also taken students hunting and hiking. This year, the school is starting an Outdoor Adventures club.

Helm’s class teaches the Seven Principles of Leave No Trace in the outdoors, which involves such ideas as respecting wildlife to planning and preparation.

“This class – hopefully a big takeaway – (desires) that (students) leave the place better than they found it,” she said.

Helm wants to teach students to be prepared to enjoy the outdoors so they can return home safely. Students can receive their hunter education card and boater education card in her class.

A LOVE FOR OUTDOORS

Growing up playing traditional sports, Helm also enjoyed the outdoors, including hunting and snow skiing trips. She has participated in a number of sports as an adult, including kayak fishing and backpacking. She also likes wildlife photography.

In high school, she considered a job as a game warden.

“Because I knew that I loved being outside and knew I wanted to do something where I was making a difference and I felt like being a game warden, you’re protecting animals, protecting people, protecting our wildlife and lands,” she said.

She decided, though, to go the route of being a teacher and coach.

“The cool thing about this class is that I have a diverse group of students,” she said. “I have students that are not into hunting at all.”

But by the end of the hunter course, they gain an understanding of why hunting is important and they’re glad they took it. Students can find a number of activities in the class that can pique their interest, including a unit on knot-tying.

“It is a very gratifying class to teach,” she said, noting how students can pass on lifelong lessons to their own children and others one day.

One particularly positive aspect of the course is Helm learns from the students, too, using Dutch oven cooking as one example.

“In this class, it’s like cool stuff that you can use the rest of your life,” she said.

Ten essentials for survival in the outdoors:

This list, created in 1930 by the Mountaineers, is a basic list of necessities to help people survive in the wilderness.

- Map
- Compass
- Sunglasses and sunscreen
- Extra clothing
- Headlamp/flashlight
- First-aid supplies
- Firestarter
- Matches
- Knife
- Extra food

Ten essential systems, updated:

In 2003, the Mountaineers updated the list by focusing on systems rather than 10 specific items.

- Navigation (map, topo map, GPS, and compass)
- Sun protection (hat, sunglasses, and sunscreen)
- Insulation (extra clothing)
- Illumination (such as headlamp/flashlight)
- First-aid supplies
- Fire (waterproof matches/lighter/candles/striker)
- Repair kit and tools
- Nutrition (extra food)
- Hydration (extra water)
- Emergency shelter and the community, McClure said.

“We get kids involved in the outdoors through outdoor adventures, and Lisa exemplifies that in everything that she does,” he said.

She stood out because of the diversity she provides her students, he said, noting she teaches everything from hunter education to shooting sports and fishing to camping, backpacking and survival skills.

“So, when a student takes her class, they usually leave with new skills that they can use for the rest of their life,” McClure said.

Outdoor Adventures has been a class since the 1960s, but it was usually taught as backyard sports, such as croquet and badminton, he said.

“But we have a curriculum that is a more adventure-oriented,” he said. “That’s why we have the hunting, the fishing, the shooting sports and survival skills, camping, backpacking and hiking. So, we have a large gamut of 34 units, and we let the schools pick the units that are best for their community.”

The curriculum is a kindergarten through grade 12 program.

“Our emphasis is a love of the outdoors and wildlife,” he said. The foundation wants people to enjoy wildlife and its sustainable use, and foundation officials get involved in wildlife conservation.

“I am extremely proud of Coach Helm’s national recognition,” said Azle Superintendent Todd Smith, in an email. “Her love and passion for the outdoors truly shows through her commitment to this course and dedication

Mary, did you know that your baby boy will give sight to a blind man? Mary, did you know that your baby boy would calm a storm with His hand? Did you know that your baby boy has walked where angels trod, and when you kiss your little baby you’ve kissed the face of God? Mary, did you know?

into words the unfathomable. I started thinking of the questions I would have for her if I were to sit down and have coffee with Mary. You know, “What was it like raising God?” “What did you know?” “What didn’t you know?”

Since the song’s release, it has become incredibly popular and has been recorded by such artists as Kenny Rogers and Wynona Judd, Carrie Underwood, Pentatonix and Dolly Parton (among many others).

It has also been panned by some theologians and preachers who suggest that she absolutely did know because the Bible says and angel appeared to her and told her.

Here’s the account from Luke 1:26-38:

Now in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God to a city in Galilee called Nazareth, to a virgin engaged to a man whose name was Joseph, of the descendants of David; and the virgin’s name was Mary. And coming in, he said to her, “Greetings, favored one! The Lord is with you.” But she was very perplexed at this statement, and kept pondering what kind of salutation this was. The angel said to her, “Do not be afraid, Mary; for you have found favor with God. And behold, you will conceive in your womb and bear a son, and you shall name Him Jesus. He will be great and will be called the Son of the Most High; and the Lord God will give Him the throne of His father David; and He will reign over the house of Jacob forever, and His kingdom will have no end.” Mary said to the angel, “How can this be, since I am a virgin?” The angel answered and said to her, “The Holy Spirit will come upon you, and the power of the Most High will overshadow you; and for that reason the holy Child shall be called the Son of God. And behold, even your relative Elizabeth has also conceived a son in her old age; and she who was called barren is now in her sixth month. For nothing will be impossible with God.” And Mary said, “Behold, the bondservant of the Lord; may it be done to me according to your word.” And the angel departed from her.

So, what do you think? Did she know?

Here’s my answer: She knew more than anyone else about the baby in her womb, but she did not know everything. She got a message from God; she did not receive God-like omniscience.

And the point of the song is to engage the imagination, not to answer all the questions.

It is the wonder of faith and devotion expressed in art.

I can’t think of a better approach to Christmas than one of wonder. Faith is messy and mysterious and requires us to sit humbly in realities that are beyond our comprehension.

Here’s what I know: In an amazing mystery that completely amazes me, God came to us and remains with us.

Merry Christmas.

Be amazed and be amazing, my friend.

Scared, lonely COVID puppy

DEAR FRANKIE

By Geneva Woodruff

Frankie is a rescue dog and an emotional support animal for Geneva Woodruff. Woodruff is a retired educator.

Dear Frankie,

I was adopted during COVID when I was two months old. For the first six months of my life, my human siblings and parents were always at home. It never crossed my mind that we wouldn’t always be together. The first clue I got that things were going to change was when my sibs went back to school. But the real shocker came when my mom went to work. From the minute she left, the same question went round and round in my head, ‘when will she come back?’ My dad understood my anxiety, and to calm me down, gave me extra treats and let me sit on his lap for as long as I wanted. Then, when I was getting used to being just with my dad, I heard him say to the family he was going back to work full time. Do you understand what that means for me? I am going to be alone, in the house, all by myself five days a week. Do dogs ever have nervous breakdowns when they are left at home alone?

Scared, Madeline

Dear Madeline,

I certainly understand your anxiety about being on your own for the first time. However, your situation may not be as dire as you think. There are a variety of services for dogs living with working families. These are just a few of the services: dog walkers who take dogs out for a run, pet sitters who come to the house to provide companionship, doggie daycares for dogs to be with other dogs. If your parents decide you’ll be fine on your own during the day, you might reframe how you think about the time to make it more palatable. Perhaps if you thought in terms of hours before your sibs come home from school rather than an entire day, it might make it easier for you to accept. You might also think about how you could use the time in enjoyable ways. I know some dogs who pass their time alone quite pleasantly by taking long naps in a sunny spot, and others who watch TV shows, such as the soaps, or reruns of the Westminster Dog Show. It might help if you kept in mind that there will be many weeks when your family will be at home, such as holidays and school and summer vacations. There will also be times when someone in the family will stay home because they are under the weather. From what you said about your dad, I think he and your mom will see that you are taken care of when the family is away.

Best, Frankie

BOOK REVIEW

No shame in imbibing 'Girly Drinks,' so bottoms up!

BY TERRI SCHLICHENMEYER

Your frothy blue drink doesn't need a cover, but there is one.

It's a purple umbrella that hides the fresh fruit clinging to the side of your glass, just beneath the sugar crystals along the rim, floating on a kiss of distilled liquid. Nobody would consider this to be a manly drink, but so what? It all looks so delicious and with the new book "Girly Drinks" by Mallory O'Meara, bottoms up!

You can almost picture it: a group of your earliest ancestors, out hunting for a mammoth when they stumbled across a pile of slightly rotten fruit. Mmmmm, they each take bites and find that it makes their heads pleasantly fuzzy. That, says O'Meara, might've been how alcohol was "discovered," rather than invented.

However it happened, she says, women took big roles in the manufacture of alcohol from the outset. Beer, she says, was "a girl thing" at several points in history. Women were in charge of winemaking, early-on; in times when they were barely allowed to leave the house, women were still instrumental in making the alcohol. Even when the very idea of a drinking woman sent men into a tizzy, powerful women drank.

They also changed the landscape for alcohol.

Cleopatra loved to drink, but she did not drink to excess. She left that to Mark Antony, and their imbibing may have been part of why Octavius hated her so.

In Hildegard's time, the women of Germany often became "alewives," and their work allowed them to control who drank the ale. Meanwhile, with the blessing of the Pope, Hildegard of Bingen began to write about spirituality, nature, her "visions," and medicine. It was she who first claimed that hops helps stop spoilage in beer-making.

Later, alehouses went from homes to separate buildings and were courting places before the Church made witches out of alewives. Catherine the Great used vodka as diplomatic gifts; the first celebrity female bartender served 'em up in London; gin, rum, and whiskey were invented all around the same time; and then came Prohibition...

Pink drinks with fruity-flavored liquor and decorative plastic gewgaws would never be considered a "manly" drink - ever. But, asks Mallory O'Meara in her introduction to "Girly Drinks," since when is booze gendered?

That's the point that runs everywhere throughout this book: the labeling of drinks today has a long background. The patriarchy was strong then, and it successfully hid the feminine footprints in nearly every kind of alcohol we imbibe.

Don't think that this is a feminist rant, though. Think of it more like a few hours in a red pleather booth with water-rings beneath your wrists, slipping through time and geography, from ancient Greece to modern culture, Cleopatra's Egypt to an inclusive bar in Ohio. It's lighthearted but sometimes serious; and perfect for bar bets and ice-breakers.

Even better, if you're hoisting one whilst reading.

Fans of fun history, cheers! Alewives, here's to you! Bottoms up, New Year celebrants. Even if you're only here for the tavern trivia, "Girly Drinks" has you covered.

ON FISHING

Finding those deeper fishing holes in the river

I have spent a lot of time chasing winter striped bass in the river. Much of my river time is either running the river above Granbury or the Brazos River above Lake Whitney. This fall/winter migration happens on most every reservoir that has striped bass, sand bass and even crappie.

Not all fish move up in the river. Many ask, why do striped bass swim upstream? There are a couple thoughts on this scenario. One is that the creeks and river will warm faster than the main lake and the baitfish will move up. Food moves up and the predators are not far behind.

The other theory is that as the cooler water falls through their spawning temperature, even though it is not time to spawn the bigger fish go through the motion. Actual spawning attempts take place around April/May for striped bass.

Not all striped bass will run up the Brazos. Many will stay near main lake points and other tributaries. I don't think anyone really knows for sure, but we do know that these fish travel in the winter. This is also true for the sand bass species as well.

Fishing the river in many instances can be a lot easier than trying to decipher a huge reservoir. Fish generally congregate near deeper pools or holes in the river. This concentrates the fish, making it easier to locate them and catch them.

These fish move to these deeper holes for a couple of reasons. First of all, the baitfish are there trying to huddle near the bottom that is slightly warmer. Fish will also hold near rock outcroppings as these rocks can be warmed by the sun and heat the water in that vicinity. If you use your sonar and mark huge concentrations of baitfish, the predators are generally close by.

So how do you locate these deeper holes in a river or creek? Some maps will show details. However, most maps do not show the real contour of the bottom of the river and you have to rely on your depth finder and the clues in the terrain adjacent to the river or creek.

Deeper pools generally are located near the outside corner of a bend in the river. If there are steep inclines or a cliff on one side, this may point you to a hole. The point at which two creeks come together may be a good spot. The rocky side of a bank may point you to deeper water. Sloping sand flats on one side of the river may indicate that deeper water may exist on the opposite side.

Once you locate a potential fishing hole and you have identified that baitfish are present, work the hole slowly. This time of the year the water is cold (around 50 degrees) and the slower you work your presentation the more strikes you will get.

Some days the shallower water adjacent to these holes will warm up slightly more than the deeper holes and the baitfish and predators may move up. Don't forget to work these shallower areas as well. If you happen to see birds working surface feeding fish, I would go there first. Approach slowly with your trolling motor and do not run through them with your big motor as you may spook and scatter the fish.

For sand bass and crappie, bouncing a small chartreuse jig or spoon real slowly off the bottom can produce some good catches in these same deeper pockets of water. Smaller presentations at times may yield good catches. Try to match what they are feeding on if you can figure that out. On many occasions in the winter while striper fishing I do not move my jig at all (the slight movement of the boat is sufficient to get a strike).

So what happens when you go to the river and you cannot find baitfish or anything? Sometimes after a major cold snap or when water temperatures fall in the lower 40s, the baitfish and predators move to happier, warmer grounds where they can survive.

I like to work back down the river toward the reservoir until I can find some deeper water. On Lake Whitney, for example, I move to below Lakeside Village where the depth falls to 30 feet plus, and the fish may be huddled in the slightly warmer depths (on really cold days). On Lake Granbury, the fish may move back below the Highway 51 bridge toward Bentwater where it gets fairly deep. A few days later the weather may start to warm again and the fish may move back up in the river.

Be aware of everything going on around you. Some minor things can offer a clue to which area may produce, such as active baitfish on the surface, or birds hovering. Winter is a great time to be on the water. Hope to see you out there.

FISHING REPORT

The striped bass fishing on both Lake Whitney and Possum Kingdom Lake are good under the birds. Some good fish are being caught in the main lake and some on the upper ends on both reservoirs.

Lake Texoma striped bass fishing is excellent on swim baits worked through schools of fish from North Island back to the Highway 377 bridge. Whitney crappies are excellent near Kimball Bend on small minnows and jigs.

Treat your pets to safe, happy holidays

Don't spoil Christmas, avoid these common household hazards

BY JAY ANN COX
Staff Writer

Our pets are like family. No, they are family. That's why most pet owners will indulge them at the holidays, spending big bucks in some cases to get them just the right thing.

No matter what the treat, pet owners should watch out for the dangers lurking in holiday décor, foods and pet presents because some pets are dead set on emergency room visits — turning that treat into a costly vet treatment.

TOY JOY

Keep in mind, any toy can be hazardous. It depends on the pet more than the toy. Some pets embrace their instinct to "kill" the toy and ingest it. Thousands of dollars and lots of heartache can be saved if you catch that detached squeaker before it ends up in your dog or cat's intestines.

To prevent this type of hazard, check to see how easily parts can be removed, and how your pet is playing with the toy. Watch out especially for:

- Rope and knot toys (strings can cause intestinal blockage and distress)
- Feathers (the quills can puncture or irritate digestive tract)
- Bells and squeakers (digestive tract blockage or perforation)
- Stuffed toys (stuffing if ingested doesn't pass very easily)

TREAT TROUBLE

Stick to treats made for pets. Dogs especially should not have any of the following ingredients that come in many holiday favorites:

- Chocolate/cocoa powder (contains theobromine, which is toxic to dogs)
- Currants, raisins or grapes (cookies or fruit cakes)
- Alcohol (rum cake)
- Raw dough (may contain alcohol from the yeast)
- Garlic and onion (found in gravy, vegetables, casseroles)
- Anything containing the sweetener xylitol
- Fatty and/or raw meat scraps (can interfere with normal pancreatic function)
- Bones (cooked or raw, bones can splinter)

DANGEROUS DECOR

Put these items on your radar that can cause big headaches for you and dangerous stomach aches for pets.

- Potpourri (some pets like the texture or smell; can be toxic)
- Mistletoe and holly (poisonous to both cats and dogs)
- Package bows and ribbons (choking and intestinal blockage)
- Tinsel and garlands (lacerations in mouth and esophagus)
- Decorations with wire or sparkling lights (burns, cuts and digestive blockage) sees. She said, ‘If you wear these, you won’t catch anything.’”

He’s an entertainer at his core. In addition to his rodeo clown appearances, Roxy is also an unofficial mascot for local sports teams (those are top secret, he’s not sharing his identity just yet), and he has more than a few mascot heads lined up around his room — 19 to be exact — for everything from the Easter Bunny to the Grinch and characters in between.

Last summer, Roxy went to a mascot camp, learning all the important pieces to being a quality entertainer while in costume, including dance moves, how to pose, and how to be spontaneous. Big Hat Roxy has appeared in the Azle Christmas parade and homecoming parade this year, and most recently was in the Oak Harbor neighborhood parade as a jet-skiing Grinch.

But while he loves being a mascot, his heart is all rodeo. “My dad was in the rodeo for a long time,” said Reed. “So, we are a rodeo family, but I never thought of rodeo clowning before Roxton.”

Roxy’s been testing his bravery in front of young 1-year-old bulls at his uncle’s ranch in Honey Grove, taking hits while in his custom, homemade barrel.

“I take some hits from the cows at home too,” Roxy said. “They hit pretty hard.”

One of his prized possessions is a Montana Silversmiths buckle he won this past February at the Cowtown Coliseum for being named Fan of the Night.

He was dancing and yelling while in costume, getting the attention of all those around him, entertaining as always.

When he’s not practicing his act, he enjoys spending time with his reptiles — a chameleon, a gecko, and a tortoise — making barrels to sell to other rodeo clowns and coming up with skits and performing them on his TikTok channel, @BigHatRoxy0.

For now, Roxy has plans to stay in school. But that’s not slowing down his plans to build his brand and become one of the most memorable rodeo clowns.

What could be more magical than a letter from Santa Claus?

“I saw (this idea) from another parent where they were answering Santa letters,” Walley said. “So, I posted about it on Facebook and asked for help.”

Servolution Network contacted Walley and said they had a mailbox. All Walley had to do was paint it bright red and add some decals, and she had a special box for kids to put their letters to Santa. They go directly to the North Pole, where Santa will sit down and write a reply to each kid and send it back.

Santa (aka Walley, her mom and aunt) have been collecting the letters and writing responses, working quickly to make sure each child gets their letter — on St. Nick’s special stationery — before Christmas. So far, they have received 160 letters to Santa.

The box will stay open for letters until the day before Christmas Eve. Those ones will get hand-delivered responses from Santa’s elves.

Walley said that after the overwhelming response from kids in the community, she definitely plans to do this again next year.

“I think it just brings joy,” she said. “It gives them something to look forward to. It’s fun to have their own Santa mailbox in town.” Santa’s mailbox is located outside of the Servolution Network Dream Center, 11698 FM 730 South in Azle. Include a return address with each child’s letter and Santa will send a response as soon as he can.

Remember, honor, teach

azlereporter@azlenews.net

National Wreaths Across America Day was on Dec. 18, with a local ceremony held at Azleland Cemetery. The event was hosted by the Azle Composite Squadron, Civil Air Patrol.

"TX-456 Azle Composite Squadron cadets and senior members took very seriously the sponsorship commitment of Azleland Memorial Park's 500 laid to rest veterans," said 2nd Lt. Tracy David-Day.

"There is a true dedication to the mission to remember, honor and teach. Along with fulfilling all required wreath sponsorships, the Squadron participated honorably in the annual ceremony, which was both impactful and moving.

"We are so thankful for the community that chose to join us even in the brisk windy weather. We truly hope all in attendance felt the reverence for the sacrifices our veterans make and carry the day of remembrance with them all year."

Ceremonies are held in more than 2,500 cemeteries across the country. Dozens of cemeteries across North Texas took part in the annual event, including Azleland Cemetery, which is the final resting place for at least 500 men and women who served their country.

The Azle Composite Squadron was joined by the Keller ISD Air Force JROTC, local BSA scout troops and residents from the community who chose to volunteer their time on Dec. 18 to place wreaths on the graves of those men and women.

Maj. Brian Kilian conducted the ceremony, thanking everyone for coming to honor veterans for their service. Members of the squadron helped place wreaths and assisted volunteers in locating headstones of veterans to be honored. There were so many volunteers that the 500 wreaths were laid in less than an hour.

"The Wreaths Across America ceremony was a touching event that honored the veterans buried in Azleland Memorial Park," said 1st Lt. Ronda Kilian.

"From the presenting of the colors to the laying of wreaths, each act was done out of respect, honor and remembrance for those who sacrificed for us to enjoy freedom every day. The outpouring of support from the community to sponsor the needed 500 wreaths was unprecedented for our location.

Casey Thornton and sons Grayson, left, and Casey M. participated in a Wreaths Across America Day ceremony Dec. 18 at Azleland Cemetery. The boys belong to Boy Scout Troop 243 in Azle.

"Having a substantial attendance of community members, active duty and retired military members, scouts and Jr. ROTC join with the cadets and senior members from our unit made this an incredible show of support for these veterans. I believe it was a great avenue to remind ourselves as well as teach our younger generation the importance of pausing from our busy lives to remember and honor these men and women."

The WAA program is active throughout the year, furthering its mission to remember, honor and teach. One way they do that is with the Veterans Remembrance Tree program, in which families of veterans can have an inscribed dog tag placed on the trees where the balsam tips are harvested each year for the wreaths.

They also honor veterans with the "Thanks-a-Million" campaign, which distributes free thank-you cards that people can share with veterans to thank them for their service.

WAA offers teaching materials for schools, 4-H groups, scouts and other youth groups, including coloring books and curriculum that help teach children of all ages about the value of the role veterans play in preserving freedom.

Azle High School wrestlers traveled out of state to participate in a tournament and showed The Natural State that the Hornets mean business.

The Lady Hornets finished in second place out of 17 teams at the Hammer Invitational in Cabot, Ark., over the weekend. The boys finished 11th out of 24 teams.

For the girls, Pella Lefever won the individual championship in the 148-pound class and earned a Big Hammer trophy for a reward. Kaitlynn Kirkland-Lane and Annabelle Davis won second-place in their weight categories. Zoe Weaver took third place, and Jacy Williams and Kenzie Kearns nabbed fourth-place finishes.

For the boys, Billy Spratt earned a second-place medal. Landin Evans won third, and Dominick Evans took sixth.

Both teams will enjoy a holiday break before resuming competition on Thursday, Dec. 30, at a home tournament at Azle High.

Azle boys flex muscles heading into holidays

BY JEFF PRINCE
jeff@azlenews.net

The Azle Hornets were 12-3 and dominating District 5-5A when they traveled west to Mineral Wells for a weekend boys basketball tournament.

The first team they faced was Castleberry, a team that is dominating District 7-4A in Fort Worth.

On Thursday, these two powerhouses of North Texas roundball met at a neutral site to see who was best on that day.

What a beautiful battle it was. The Hornets vs. the Lions, with both teams playing like it was the Hunger Games.

The Hornets were valiant in defeat, dropping the game 83-81 but keeping their heads high. They bounced back on Friday to beat Benbrook 53-42, then came back Saturday to topple Stephenville 69-36 and Mineral Wells 73-46, clinching third place in the tournament.

Now, the holiday season beckons, classes are closed for a couple of weeks and the Hornets will be ho-ho-ho-ing for a few days before jumping back onto the court.

Azle (15-4) resumes play at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 28, at Everman (5-3).

The Hornets begin district competition on Friday, Jan. 14, at home against Aledo.

Azle Christian's basketball boys are showing their mettle in the TAPPS league this season after moving up from the Texas Christian Athletic Fellowship league.

On Friday, the 1A Crusaders battled a 3A TAPPS team and came out on top, with Azle Christian beating Temple Christian 61-52.

The win improved the Crusaders' record to 3-6.

"We've been playing bigger schools, which is good competition for us," said head coach Ryan Rollins. "We are getting better ... slowly but surely."

After a break for the holidays, the Crusaders will resume their schedule on Tuesday, Dec. 28, in a road game at Reicher Catholic. A couple of more nonconference games will follow, before the Crusaders open district competition at 7 p.m. Jan. 11 at Community Christian in Mineral Wells.

"We are going to be fine in district," Rollins said. "We will be more than prepared for district. We are starting to get everything down. It's just a matter of playing with some of these bigger schools."

Rollins expects his team to be in the thick of the playoff race by season's end. Camden Logan has led the team in scoring in every game and can nab rebounds, as well.

Brothers Jake and Drew Skartvedt have been averaging about 10 points a game apiece. Ryan English can score 10 or more points on any given night.

"Offense is coming along," Rollins said.

On defense, Noah Rollins has been dominating the boards with a dozen rebounds a game.

"Things are coming together," the coach said. "I'm excited to see where we go from here."

Lady Hornets fall to Stephenville before holiday break

BY JEFF PRINCE
jeff@azlenews.net

The Azle High School girls basketball team was about to give itself an early Christmas gift heading into the holiday break.

On Monday, the Lady Hornets were up 25-22 at halftime against Stephenville and led for most of the game before falling behind in the fourth quarter. By then, hard-nosed Azle rebounder Brittany Cato was sitting on the bench with her ankle wrapped in ice, and Kendall Locke had fouled out of the game for the first time this season.

Azle head coach Mitzi Marquart then relied on her youthful players: sophomore starter Landri Seward and sophomore backups Vielka Gonzalez and Brandi Phillips. The Lady Hornets fought back to within five points with 30 seconds left in the game and were down by three points with 18 seconds remaining.

Mia Carrizales forced Stephenville to turn over the ball, and the Lady Hornets hustled down the court intent on tying the game. A bobbled pass, however, led to a turnover of their own, and the Lady Hornets watched the game end in a 51-46 defeat.

Not to worry. The Lady Hornets headed into the Christmas break sitting comfortably atop District 5-5A with a dozen wins under their belts.

The girls had ended the previous week by hammering Nolan Catholic. After controlling the game during the first half, the Hornets relied on younger girls during the second half with the team up 35-18.

No freshmen players are on the varsity squad, and only two seniors made the team. That leaves mostly juniors and sophomores. One of the sophomores, Seward, is a starter. The other two — Gonzalez and Phillips — have logged plenty of court time and performed well. Against Nolan, Gonzalez scored seven points, and Seward scored three. Phillips missed her only attempt at a bucket but played tough under the boards.

Eventually, Nolan Catholic pulled to within 10 points, and Marquart sent her more experienced players back to the court to finish the game with an exclamation point. Final score:

Azle 51, Nolan Catholic 30.

Azle (12-4) plays next at the Castleberry tournament, which begins Tuesday, Dec. 28. District competition begins at 6:15 p.m. Friday, Jan. 7, at Wichita Falls High School.

Azle Christian girls make new coach proud

Marie Knight, a junior, led the Crusaders in scoring against Trinity Valley on Friday.

BY JEFF PRINCE
jeff@azlenews.net

In November, two weeks before the basketball season was set to begin, the Azle Christian High School girls remained without a coach.

Joe Shehan, whose daughter, Gayle, attends the private school, took the job. His goal was to put a competitive team on the court.

The Lady Crusaders are winless at 0-2. They have had several games canceled at the last minute for various reasons.

Still, Shehan sees much to be happy about.

On Monday, the Lady Crusaders played their second game of the season, taking on Trinity Valley. The Crusaders lost 42-14 but achieved several goals their coach had set prior to the game.

"We hit all the goals that I was looking for," Shehan said. "We held our opponent to under 45. We broke double digits. We spread the wealth around."

Most of his team's points were scored in the second half. "I was proud of my team in the second half," he said. "We came alive. We made some good adjustments. I was really happy with that."

Marie Knight was the high scorer for ACHS. Laney Geeslin was a terror on defense and hit several three pointers on offense. Gayle Shehan had a great night defensively with 10 stuffs and 11 rebounds.

The team is looking for its first win still, but coach Shehan feels like a winner already.

"We are definitely having some growing pains, but you know what? We are a young team, and we are going to keep fighting," he said. "We practically doubled our points from last week. Defensively, we had some amazing stops against a team that was really fast and knew where to find the holes. There are a lot of positives."

Azle Christian (0-2) will take off three weeks for Christmas and resume playing on Friday, Jan. 7, at home against Temple Christian (2-2).

Season's Greetings

2nd Grade Letters to Santa Claus

Once again, here's our popular special "Season's Greetings" section! It's our annual Christmastime insert of letters written by Azle and Springtown second graders to Santa Claus. We print the letters as written and ship them off to the North Pole in plenty of time for Santa to get them. Advertisers make this special section possible and it's their way of wishing friends and customers a Merry Christmas. The businesses in this "Season's Greetings" support this community and we encourage you to do business with them at every opportunity. May these letters make you smile and appreciate the magic of the season! From all of us at the Azle News and Springtown Epigraph - Merry Christmas!
