Vestal PD finds Windsor Man who Drowned in River

June 24, 2023 at around 6:50am, Broome County Communications received a call from an individual fishing in the Susquehanna River who believed he saw a human body in the water. Responding Vestal police officers verified that a human body was in the river, approximately 30 feet from the shoreline, at the dam across from the old Goudey Station.

The Vestal Fire Department's Water Rescue Team responded and recovered the body which was transported to Wilson Hospital. The results of an autopsy conducted Saturday morning found evidence consistent with drowning.

No evidence of trauma or foul play was discovered. The deceased was identified as 34-year-old Sean Marion, last known to reside in Windsor, NY.

While there is no foul play suspected, Vestal Police are still investigating what may have happened to Marion. Anyone with information of Sean Marion and/or his recent whereabouts since June 17th are asked to contact the Vestal Police Detective Division at (607) 754-2477.

THE AWFUL TRAIN WRECK

In celebration of Vestal's Bicentennial this year, Endicott resident Maryann Thompson released her book, The Awful Train Wreck, last month. In her book, Thompson uncovers the mysteries behind a devastating train wreck that occurred near the town's Rail Trail in 1901. Most of what is in the book hasn't been known to the public since the only historical fact about the wreck that was available is the marker that sits on the walking trail. Now, with her book, Maryann hopes to spread awareness about this historic event.

Thompson's interest in history first sparked with her husband, who had studied Ancient History at Binghamton University. One of his passions were railroads and history, which helped gained Maryann's interest in early history about railroads and local history. While residing in Endicott, she noticed there were railroad tracks on both the part of the river she was on and also tracks that ran through Vestal and wanted to know why they were there.

About 25 years ago, Maryann Thompson visited the Vestal Museum and spotted an album full of photos that showed pictures of an awful train wreck. "My first reaction was 'Oh my god!' I was immediately curious on how much was damaged and what the costs were from the crash." said Thompson. In that moment, the hunt for more information about this event kicked off as she started her research.

Since this all occurred over two decades ago, there was little information on the internet Maryann could find about the wreck and she didn't have much luck with the Binghamton Historian at the time. Because of this, she paid frequent visits to Elmira to research newspapers from the time of the wreck considering the crews that were involved were from the same neighborhood there. This proved to be an excellent idea because with every visit, new information was found. Thompson was determined to find out what happened in the crash and the men that were part of it. She went so far as to visiting the graves of some of the men. Eventually, Maryann hit a roadblock in her research and came close to ending it all and donating the information she found to the Vestal Historian. Luckily, the Historian encouraged her to finish her research and write the book, to which Thompson was glad to find the inspiration to conclude her multi decade project.

After years of research, Maryann Thompson was satisfied with the information she gathered, but still wishes she could find photos of the men who were involved in the accident. When asked if she would publish another book, she said she would leave the door open but, if she finds more information on the crash and photos of the men, she will consider making a second volume to her current book.

Maryann Thompson currently lives in Endicott with her husband and worked at IBM for many years. Not only does she love local history, she's also fascinated with Civil War and regional history. Maryann and her husband even made trips to Scranton, PA to check out railroads and learn more about the Scranton Brothers. If you're interested in purchasing The Awful Train Wreck, copies are available at the Vestal Museum. You can also purchase them online at Barnes and Noble and Amazon.
